HOW MOB LYNCHED FRANK

FORTRESS NEARING FALL

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—Capture of the forts of Kovno between the Niemen and Gosia is announced in today's official report from the General Staff.

The Germans captured 4,500 prisoners and 24 cannon. It is believed that the fall of the main

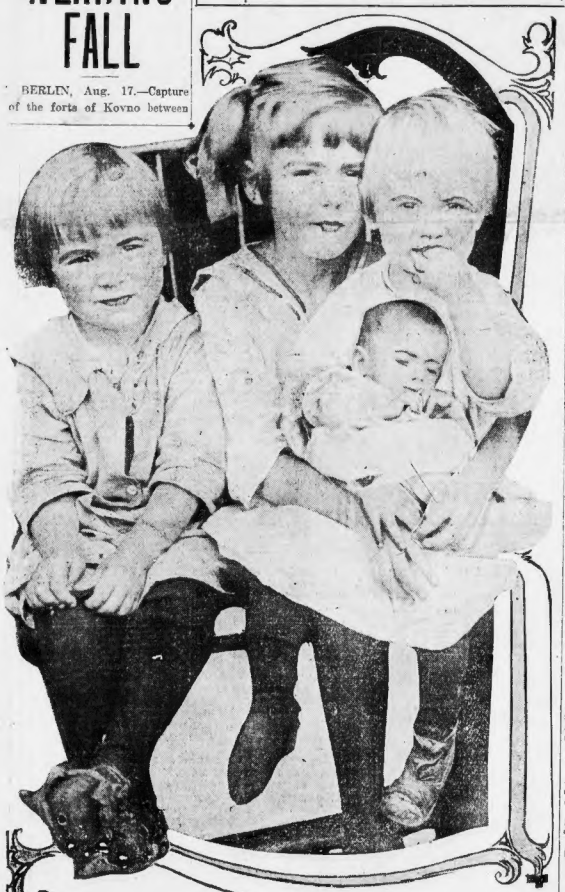
ARREST MOTHER OF FOUR STARVING LYNN CHILDREN

The Lynn police this afternoon arrested Mrs. Adele Woods of Jackson street, that city, on a charge of wilful neglect of her four children, Bernardine, seven; Flora, three; Pearl, two, and a three months old baby.

The children were found in the Jackson street house last night. The police said they were starving. The mother was taken into custody when she appeared at the Lynn police headquarters to see the children. The police said there might be another arrest in the case.

The baby was found lying in a soap box, with an empty nursing bottle beside it. Bernardine, the seven-year-old girl, who had charge of the children, said they had a bowl of soup Sunday, but no food of any kind since then.

Neighbors complained to the police that they had heard the baby crying incessantly for two days. When the police arrived at the home little Bernardine refused to open the door, saying her mother had warned her against opening it.



The Woods children of Lynn, who were found starving, according to the police. On the left, Flora, three; Bernadine, seven, holding Pearl, two, and three-months-old baby.

1,000 LOST ON TROOPSHIP

TROOPSHIP SUNK BY GERMANS

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The British transport Royal Edward, convoying troops to the Dardanelles, has been sunk in the Aegean Sea, presumably by a German submarine, and it is believed that 1,000 men perished.

The Admiralty announced the loss of the vessel today, stating that six hundred men aboard had been saved.

That a British transport had been sunk became known at the admiralty in the forenoon, but it was not until 12:40 o'clock this afternoon that the official announcement was made.

The submarine which sank the Royal Edward is believed here to be the German U-boat which had previously sunk two British warships off Gallipoli peninsula. Since the loss of the warships greater precautions than ever have been taken, but the sinking of the Royal Edward indicates that the submarine has succeeded in reaching the route followed by British ships taking new forces to the Dardanelles front.

The text of the Admiralty announcement follows:

"The British transport Royal Edward was sunk by an enemy submarine in the Aegean Sea Saturday. According to information available, the transport had aboard 32 military officers, 1,350 troops and the ship's crew of 229 officers and men.

"The troops were mainly reinforcements for the Twenty-ninth Division and details of the Royal Army Medical Corps.

"Full information is not yet available, but it is known about 600 were saved."

Offer Bridgeport Strikers a Raise

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Aug. 17.—The 2,000 piece-workers at the Warner Brothers corset factory who walked out yesterday afternoon are still on strike, although a notice posted by the company today promising an increase in wages may bring them back. The notice, which grants an increase of 10 per cent. for both day and piece-work and an eight-hour-a-day schedule, to go into effect immediately, was sent by the company to the employes in meeting today.

FIRE ADDS TO FLOOD PERIL

GALVESTON, Texas, Aug. 17.—[By wireless to New Orleans.]—Galveston is emerging from the flood of yesterday and last night with a loss of five lives, as far as known, and damage to property somewhat in excess of $1,000,000. The water, which flooded all the streets to a depth of several feet, is receding.

Several fires, one of them in the Grand Hotel, are doing considerable damage.

Among the many boats damaged was the government transport McClellan.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 17.—With Galveston, Houston, Austin, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Sabine, Sabine Pass and numerous smaller places on the gulf coast cut off from all communication with the outside world, efforts were made here today to learn the extent of the damage done by the West Indian hurricane which has been ripping its way inland from the gulf for the past 24 hours. The last wire to Austin "went down" shortly after 10 a. m. today.

It is known that a section of the Causeway at Galveston, which connects that city with the mainland, has been washed away and that the water was at least five feet deep in the streets of Galveston.

Communication with Houston for a minute this morning, brought the news that a party of refugees, who reached Houston at 6 a. m. today, believed that Galveston was safe, although they thought a small loss of life was inevitable.

It is known that 8,000 persons left Galveston yesterday and early last night, but nothing has been heard from points further east on the coast for twenty-four hours and the fate of those sections is unknown.

Governor Ferguson was early at work in an effort to learn the state of affairs, but he was handicapped by the destruction of wire facilities to the centres of interest.

Houston, where most of the Galveston refugees rushed, was shut off from the world at 3 o'clock this morning.

The citizens of Sabine Pass, totaling about 1,200, were reported to have gotten out in safety. At Port Arthur, which is on Sabine Pass, it was reported that six hundred persons had remained in their homes and would take the chance.

MANY PLACES CUT OFF.

The entire coast from Sabine Pass to Matagorda Bay, a distance of nearly 200 miles, has been cut off from the world for hours and much apprehension is expressed for the safety of persons there.

Grand Island, Texas, was reported to be under six feet of water. While no steamers left Galveston yesterday, it is feared that some of the shipping on the gulf which could not be warned by wireless of the approaching hurricane may have met with disaster.

Exchange Falls to Low Mark in New York Today

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Sterling exchange reached a new low level today, despite the proposition advanced in London to issue British securities for sale in the United States.

The early quotations on pounds sterling was $4.64 for demand and $4.65 on cables. The French rate of exchange was also lower.

According to these figures the value of an English pound in this country has depreciated approximately 22 3-5 cents since the war began.

Cablegrams from London state that the Times is strongly recommending the issuance of a loan to be subscribed in the form of bonds in the United States. It would pay 5 per cent. interest.

It is understood that J. P. Morgan & Co. are considering formation of a syndicate to purchase an issue of one, five and ten-year bonds of the British government.

Finds Everett Alderman Guilty in Assault Case

Judge Donovan in the Malden Court today found Alderman Fred C. Hanson guilty of assaulting Alderman John J. Mullen at a meeting of the Everett city government, August 2, and placed the case on file. The courtroom was crowded during the two-hour trial.

Alderman Mullen testified that he was speaking on an order for the widening of Ferry street street when Alderman Hanson rushed from the opposite side of the room and attacked him.

"I believe he would have killed me had not others interfered," said Mullen. "I left the meeting to save my life."

Councilman Frank M. Carpenter testified that Mullen called Hanson the "coke company crook."

Alderman Hanson, testifying in his own behalf, said he went over to Mullen and said:

"If you don't stop that line of talk I'll lick you."

Workmen Find Part of Body of Woman

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Aug. 17.—A leg and foot of a woman, wrapped in white cloth, was unearthed by workmen digging a sewer at the Bridgeport Projectile Company plant here today. A short time later a second leg was found. It is the belief of the police that these limbs were missing from the torso found about four months ago near this scene. No identification was ever made.

CONVICT HANGED NEAR THE GRAVE OF MARY PHAGAN

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 17.—Dr. Lochon, Southern superintendent of a detective agency, received today a letter from Leo M. Frank, which it is believed contained the last written words of the famous convict. Referring to his recovery, Frank said:

"Surely God has let me live and aided me in this dark hour for a brighter day, which must be near at hand."

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 17. — Leo M. Frank, the young college graduate, was lynched early today by a band of masked men who kidnaped him from the State prison farm at Milledgeville, where he was sent for a life term after his death sentence had been commuted by former Governor Slaton for the alleged murder of Mary Phagan.

Frank's body, still warm, was found by a searching party at 8:30 this morning in the rear of a cotton gin on the outskirts of the village of Marietta, where Mary Phagan is buried.

A tall oak was the gallows. Frank's feet, wrapped in a gunny sack to the waist, were four feet from the ground. His arms were handcuffed before him. The noose had opened the wound which Creen, a fellow-lifer, recently made

TURKS CLAIM TO HAVE THRUST BACK ALLIES

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Aug. 17.—Attacks by the reinforced troops of the Allies on Gallipoli peninsula have been successfully repulsed, the Turkish War Office announced.

The official statement follows:

"On Sunday we repulsed an attack in the neighborhood of Ana Fartu and captured a captain, several men, two machine guns and rifles. Our artillery hit a torpedo boat near Avi Burnu.

"Near Sedd-El-Bahr, we exploded a mine three meters before the enemy's trenches. The enemy's position, a mine-thrower and wire entanglements were destroyed. The enemy replied with his artillery, wasting ammunition without success, the entire night.

"The situation on the other fronts on Sunday was unchanged.

"Since Aug. 6 and Aug. 7, new enemy divisions on land have commenced to attack our positions. Thanks to the brave resistance of our troops and their counter attacks the enemy gained no advantage."

RUSSIANS CLAIM SUCCESSES OVER TURKS IN ASIA

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 17.—Several successes over the Turks in the Transcaucasian theatre of hostilities are reported in the following official statement issued by the Russian War Office today:

"In the direction of the Euphrates, we occupied Kep. After five hours' fighting, we compelled strong forces to retreat toward Torol. In the same district our scouts attacked the retreating Turks, killing and capturing many.

"In the direction of the coast and near Oity, our patrols fought successful skirmishes. The Turkish bridge over the Tschoroch, near Bourghese was destroyed.

"The road from Tutach to Melazkert is reported to be strewn with Turkish dead."

FUNSTON TOLD TO WIPE OUT RAIDERS

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—Extermination of the armed Mexican bands in the Brownsville district has been decreed. The War Department has sent word to General Funston commanding the border guards, to resort to more drastic measures to keep the raiders south of the Rio Grande.

Additional troops were sent today from Brownsville to strengthen the cavalry patrol on the Rio Grande.

The report of the battle between Troop C of the Twelfth Cavalry and Mexicans, said to be Carranza soldiers, near Mercedes, and 30 miles from Brownsville, has angered War Department officials.

In consequence, Funston has been notified that the border patrols should be strengthened at every point, so that they can cope with any invading force, no matter how strong.

Alarming reports of the depredations of a band of 125 Mexicans, who crossed the Rio Grande below Fort Hancock last night, have been received. The Mexicans attacked the ranch of E. C. Wiley, driving off all the livestock and stripping it of all supplies. Instead of heading toward Mexico, the bandits made off toward the ranch country flanking the Texas Pacific Railway.

Meagre reports from Vera Cruz and Mexico City, which are controlled by Carranza, continue disquieting. Tranquil on the surface, the official reports to the State Department say that a riot might be precipitated at any time. The populace is seething with hatred against the Americans, and officials here will be very much worried until the battleships Louisiana and New Hampshire reach Vera Cruz tomorrow. It is felt here that the sight of the big guns of these war craft will have a good effect in maintaining order.

Texas was invaded by an armed force of 150 Mexicans last night, who killed one United States cavalryman and wounded two, according to a Brownsville dispatch.

The Mexicans, under cover of the night, forded the Rio Grande near Mercedes, and partly surrounded twenty-one men of the Twelfth United States Cavalry.

Germans Captured in African Fight

By International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—Thirty-seven Germans, mostly officers, and 270 native soldiers were captured by the force of the Anglo-French allies when Garua, in Kamerun, was occupied, according to a statement issued by the government press bureau today. Kamerun is a German colony in equatorial Africa. Four field guns, ten maxims and hundreds of rifles were captured by the allies. The German forces fled, pursued by French cavalry.

VOL. I. BOSTON, 17 AGOSTO, 1915. NO. 48.

Per le Famiglie dei Soldati Italiani

VALLE SEXTEN E' NOTTOLA.

Milano, 16 agosto.—Gli Italiani han fatto dei progressi notevoli nella sezi ne della valle Sexten.

Raggiunto le sommita' di Croda Rossa e Seikofel. Che significa che sesta' di detta vallata e ora in loro possesso. Le batterie italiane diressero il fuoco terribile contro i forti di Fusteralia.

Gli italiani sono innanzi pure nella vallata di Boden, e stanno, evidentemente, per forzare un passaggio tra la valle Sexten e i forti di Landro. Il porre al silenzio i forti nemici della valle Sexten non e' una cosa tanto facile, poiche essi sono situati su delle positioni proforte, ad un' altezza di 4200 piedi o p iu'.

La positione di Croda Rossa, presa dagli Italiani, e' a 6000 piedi di altezza, e quindi domina i forti nemici.

Contemporaneamente all 'avanzata nel Tirolo, gli Italiani pressano i nemici al Trentino, verso Riga. Essi sono gia' giunti a Condino, a 19 miglia da Trento.

SI RILASCIANO DEI PERMESSI DI PORTO D'ARMI.

In seguito ai fatti di domenica le autorita' competenti hanno rilasciato il permesso di portare delle armi a 60 ufficiali della batteria, sono state aumentate le guardie in difesa dei piroscafi tedeschi che sono al porto.

Gli istituti di carita' e le autorita' sanitarie di Boston e del Massachusetts sono preoccupati dell 'avvenire delle famiglie dei soldati italiani, di quelle cioe' che sono rimaste qui e che non hanno fonti di guadagno. Il governo italiano, come e' noto, da' un soccorso che varia da 15 a 20 soldi al giorno, soccorso che puo', in qualche modo, lenire la miseria in Italia, ma non puo' assolutamente bastare a soddisfare un singolo bisogno in America ove le pigioni sono care ed i viveri ancora di piu'. E giustificata quindi l'apprensione delle autorita' di questo stato le quali, prevedendo le difficolta' invernali, pensano fin da ora ad assicurare la vita materiale ai bimbi ed alle mogli dei soldati italiani partiti per l'Italia.

Poiche' gli italiani non si mostrano valenterosi di richiedere la cittadinanza Americana, la autorita' ritengono adesso se non sia bene far rimpatriare quelle famiglie che, non essendo da tre anni in America, non hanno diritto ad essere mantenute dalle istituzioni di carita' di questo stato.

Le associazioni italiane dovrebbero pensare per i loro connazionali che si trovassero in condizioni misere.

LA POLIZIA SPIEGA LA SUA ASSENZA.

Le autorita' anche fatto una inchiesta sui fatti di domenica scorsa. Si e' riscontrato che un regolare permesso fu accordato agli italiani di fare una parata, ma che però essi non seguirono l'itinerario stabilito. Ne venne di conseguenza che quando rinforzi di polizia furono chiamati in seguito al tafferuglio di Hanover st., detti rinforzi corsero secondo l'itinerario prestabilito e quindi perdettero del tempo per raggiungere i dimostranti. Il fatto che gli italiani portavano le loro bandiere non costituisce una violazione alla legge poiche' esse portavano anche quelle delle altre case.

I sei Italiani arrigati comparvero ieri avanti la corta di So. Boston. Essi furono posti sotto $1000 di cauzione ciascuno e rinviati alla seduta di venerdi prossimo. I poliziotti che furono feriti nella mischia di domenica erano in corte. Molti Italiani che stavano avanti la corte furono allontanati dalla Polizia.

UNA GRAVE CONDANNA.

Tony Gallu, uno degli accusati dell'incidente di Hanover St., che colpi con un mattone il patrolman McKenna, e stato condannato a sei mesi di casa di correzione. Egli propose appello e fu posto sotto $1,000 di cauzione.

GERMAN ATTACK IN ARGONNE REPULSED

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—In an attempt to take by surprise the French troops in the Argonne, the Germans made a fierce attack at Haute Chevauchere last night, but the War Office announced today that the assault was repulsed. The Germans leaped from their trenches and tried to take the advance French defences, but were hurled back.

The text of the communique follows.

"There were a rather violent cannonade in the course of the night at different points of the front, notably at Bonsinghe, at Quennevieres and in Lorraine in the direction of Arracourt and Leintrey.

"There were combats with grenades in the Argonne at Pontaine au Charnes and at Haute Chevauchere. At the latter point the Germans settled from their trenches to advance for an attack. Our fire drove them back into their lines."

TEUTONS TAKE KOVNO FORTS WITH 4,500

Kovno fortifications cannot be long delayed.

The General Staff also reports the capture of a large fort on the northeast defence line at Novo Georgievsk, together with two intermediate forts. These three forts were taken by storm.

The Germans captured 2,400 Russian prisoners and 18 cannon at Novo-Georgievsk.

The forces of General von Scholz and General von Gallwitz have driven the Russians back, taking 1,760 prisoners, one cannon and ten machine guns, while Prince Leopold of Bavaria ad Field Marshal von Mackensen have made further victorious progress.

In the western theatre, a British aeroplane was captured at Bapaume. German batteries at Ostend drove off two hostile destroyers.

RUSSIANS CLAIM TO HAVE SECURED RETREAT OF TROOPS

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 17. — Grand Duke Nicholas has accomplished his aim of holding the railways into the interior necessary for the orderly retirement of his troops before the advancing German hosts.

As the Russians retire, they destroy the lines and wreck the roadbeds.

Government railway officials estimated today that more than 5,000 miles of the lines built in Poland at enormous cost had been wrecked.

As the railway lines constitute the only route of advance in many parts of Poland, the Germans will be materially delayed after they have taken the second line of Russian defence.

With the cities practically devoided of their civil inhabitants, who were instructed to leave before the German onrush became a menace to the Russian positions in Poland, and with the factories removed to the interior, the Kaiser's troops will be disappointed in their hopes of taking property of great value.

It was announced today that the evacuation of Bielostok was progressing satisfactorily. The banks and other important institutions have been taken to the interior.

The evacuation of Riga continues. The famous church bells of that city have been taken to Moscow.

FRENCH SHELL GERMAN FACTORY NEAR MUENSTER AND SILENCE BATTERIES

PARIS, Aug. 17.—There has been violent artillery fighting at several points during the past 24 hours. A German munitions factory east of Muenster has been shelled, and also the gas works at St. Marie au Mines. The latter shelling by the French was in reply to the German shelling of St. Die.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans in the region of Quennevieres, and the German artillery was silenced on the Nouvron plateau. The Germans fortified works north of Godat have been damaged.

Garford Proof Of Good Business Judgment

WOULD you be satisfied to have your business reputation for efficiency rest on the impression given the public by your transfer and delivery equipment?

Your equipment is constantly before the public eye. To hundreds who might be tomorrow's customers, it illustrates the business standards you have set for yourself.

It rests with you whether your vehicles are a traveling advertisement—proof of your progressiveness—or a constant suggestion of inefficient methods.

Garford trucks stamp you as a keen, aggressive business man with a modern appreciation of the money value of time.

An Excellent Illustration

The moving and storage companies are making an asset of the particularly close scrutiny of transfer and delivery equipment.

Garford motor trucks in the use of moving and storage companies as well as 200 other distinct lines of trade are showing efficiency and economy as typically illustrated by a recent letter from the Main Street Warehouse Company, St. Louis.

We quote in part:

"Our experience with the Garford truck has been more than satisfactory.

"Actual outlay for upkeep during 1914 not $25 per month, including thorough overhauling and complete set of tires.

"It has been in constant use from date of purchase to present time."

Our complete and comprehensive range of styles and sizes from ¾ to 6 ton, gives you unusual latitude in the selection of a Garford for your business.

There is a Garford for every trucking requirement.

EXPERTS TO FIX INDEMNITY IN FRYE CASE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—In accepting the German proposal that two experts representing the two governments fix the amount of indemnity, for the loss of the American sailing ship William P. Frye and any American property that may have been sunk with her, the United States retains all of her legal rights under international law. In the note to Germany, made public here today, this government further asks that "an arrangement be agreed upon for the immediate submission to arbitration of the question of legal justification for the sinking of the Frye, insofar as it involves the interpretation of existing treaty stipulations."

Acceptance of this by Germany, which is expected, will result in a complete interpretation of the Prussian treaty and also clear up the case of the steamer Leelanaw, another American vessel sunk by a German submarine.

The Frye note "regrets" that Germany cannot accept the objections of this government to the contention that the case was not one for a prize court. It is then suggested that the two alternative suggestions made by Germany be combined and accepted.

They are that each government name an expert to agree on the amount of damages and that arbitration be accepted as the means of interpreting the existing treaty stipulations. Arbitration is to be under the provisions of Article 38, of The Hague convention.

The question of procedure, pending the arbitration award, is declared important, and Germany is asked whether her interpretation or that of the United States is to rule her navy in the meanwhile.

A CONDUCTOR HAD STOMACH TROUBLE

G. C. Bean, of 91 Franklin St., Feeling 90 Per Cent. Better in His Health.

"Twenty-five per cent. of our educated people die because of ignorance," is the recent statement of a noted scientist. Although paradoxical, the truth of this statement is significant, especially with respect to those who live in the cities. Boston may be taken as an apt illustration that will apply to American cities in general where there is a constant hustle and strife to earn a living, to make a fortune, or to excel in any line of endeavor. The grind, whether of physical labor, mental toil or the exactions of society, tells upon the nerves and human structure. The pace is too fast and is far astray from the simple plan of nature.

After a worldwide search, Plant Juice was discovered, which is a combination of plants from the juices of which was extracted a tonic that has proven to be the greatest of all known remedies for the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. This is now widely known throughout the larger cities of the country on account of its revivifying and reconstructive action, which is so apparent that the user feels himself infused with new life and his bodily ills vanish as though by magic.

Plant Juice is daily gaining converts in Boston, as is attested by the following testimonial of Mr. G. C. Bean, who lives at No. 91 Franklin Street, and is a well-known street car conductor of this city. He says:

"I have had stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia for the past three years. My food fermented on my stomach, causing gas and a heavy, bloated condition, with such severe pains all over my body that I thought I had pleurisy. I was restless and nervous, and could not sleep at night. I had tried a great many kinds of medicine, but got no benefit whatever from any of them. I heard of Plant Juice, and have taken it for a short time, and now have no pain whatever and am feeling like a new man. I can recommend it to everyone, for it is a first-class tonic for stomach trouble, and I feel 90 per cent. better."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Co.'s store, corner Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the Boston public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. —Advertisement.

EDUCATORS TO TAKE UP WALSH PLANS

College presidents and educational leaders from all parts of the United States will discuss Governor Walsh's plans for correspondence school education at the conference on Universities and Public Service to be held at the State House, August 24-27, in conjunction with the Governors' Conference.

This discussion will be on Wednesday, the second day of the conference.

"The conference will be held under the auspices of the Society for the Promotion of Training for Public Service," said Secretary Edward A. Fitzpatrick, who arrived from Madison, Wis., to complete arrangements. "A public official who is distinguished by distinctive public service is asked to call the conference. By unanimous agreement, Governor Walsh was asked to issue the call for this year's conference.

"A pressing problem of the community where the conference is held is made the basis for discussion. Massachusetts is now frankly facing the great problem of forward-looking, genuinely democratic education by way of university extension."

Among Massachusetts speakers scheduled during the four days of the conference are Dr. Frederick W. Hamilton, Dr. David Snedden, Richard H. Dana and Jasper Whiting. Other prominent speakers will include Chancellor Samuel B. McCormick of the University of Pittsburgh, Morris Llewellyn Cooke, director of public works of Philadelphia, and Thomas W. Churchill of the New York Board of Education.

ARLINGTON GIRL IS A DOUBLE OF MARY PICKFORD

Miss Helen Lawson, a Boston social welfare worker, who is considered a double of Mary Pickford, the famous motion picture actress.

French Plan for Dollar War Bonds

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The government, upon the suggestion of Minister of Finance Ribot, will issue a decree within two or three days placing on sale at postoffices, national defence bonds of denominations of twenty francs and five francs, bearing interest at 5 per cent.

Man, 75, Dies in Auto.

HILL, N. H., Aug. 17.—Frank Lovejoy, seventy-five, died here while riding with friends in an automobile.

Mary Pickford, the pretty "movie" actress, who gets $2,000 a week, has another striking double in Miss Helen Lawson, a Boston social welfare worker, whose home is at No. 47 Cleveland street, Arlington.

Miss Lawson looks so much like Mary Pickford that strangers sometimes ask her if she is the girl they see in the "movies."

"Only the other day," said Miss Lawson, "a salesgirl in a department store leaned over the counter in a confidential way and asked if I was the original Mary.

"So many tell me I look like Miss Pickford that I'm really beginning to believe it. It's amusing to me. But beyond the fun I derive out of it, it doesn't interest me much.

"I have serious work to do. Mary Pickford lightens the burdens of thousands by her talent and personality. I have found rest and entertainment in her pictures on the screen. She cheers you up."

Miss Lawson is a social welfare worker. She visits the sick in hospitals and slums and scatters sunshine and comfort wherever she goes. She has hair as wavy as Mary Pickford's. It is lighter, though. She has Mary Pickford's eyes and a Mary Pickford smile. The resemblance so impressed White, the Tremont street photographer, that he posed her. Miss Lawson is enthusiastic over her welfare work.

Sadie Doucet, a stenographer, who lives at No. 117 Hampshire street, Cambridge, is another double of Mary Pickford's, as shown by the photograph published in Sunday's AMERICAN.

CATHOLICS HEAR COMMITTEE ON MEXICO

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 17.—Both morning and afternoon sessions of the American Federation of Catholic Societies were today devoted to important business.

The report of the committee instructed to confer with President Wilson on the outrages committed on priests and sisters in Mexico was heard this afternoon. A committee on resolutions, comprising prelates from all over the country, made its report this morning.

At a mass meeting to be held tonight Charles Fay of Boston and Rev. Frederick Siedenburg of Chicago will speak on immigration.

Tomorrow will be taken up with the election of officers and the selection of a meeting place for next year's convention. It is generally believed that New York will be chosen.

FRANK TAKEN FROM PRISON CAMP BY ARMED BAND AND HANGED TO TREE

with a butcher's blade—the wound that so nearly brought death. Frank had only been discharged from the hospital ward yesterday.

The searchers had little difficulty in identifying a face that had become familiar to the nation through frequent publication of his photograph in the newspapers and magazines of the country. But the features were swollen and distorted and there was every evidence that the young man, although still weak from Creen's attack with the knife, had fought desperately with the lynchers.

Frank's only covering besides the bag that prevented him from kicking was a white silk nightdress and over the heart were found his initials "L. M. F." which his loyal wife had worked there. She had given this garment which proved his shroud only a few weeks ago.

Frank had been in possession of the avengers for hours, alive. His death was as weirdly dramatic as the other chapters of the tragedy. His kidnaping and lynching revived all of the terrifying features and lawlessness of olden days.

When Frank's life was spared by Governor Slaton a band of citizens of the slain girl's town, are reported to have gathered at midnight on her grave and to have taken oath that they would place Leo Frank's body on that grave.

PLANNED TRAGEDY IN CEMETERY.

The masked band that overpowered the two guards at the State prison farm and snatched the sleeping Frank from his cot in the dormitory, while fellow prisoners, aroused by their coming, looked on with blurred minds and blinking eyes, had clearly intended to carry out that cemetery pact.

In high-powered automobiles they sped with Frank to within two miles of Mary Phagan's grave. Indications are that they would have gone into the cemetery but that they feared detection. So they halted back of Fay's cotton gin and tossed the long end of the rope over a stout limb of the largest oak handy.

DUST-COVERED BUGGY.

News that Frank had been taken from the prison reached Marietta about 2 a. m. Then there was a lull as the few people awake speculated on what disposition the mob had made of the prisoner.

Shortly after 5 o'clock a dust-covered buggy, with the horse in a lather, came dashing into the public square. As if by instinct a knot of men gathered about it. There was a few hum of conversation. Then it were:

"He's there!" shouted a man, and he began to run to the east, along the Roswell road. "They got him!" he shouted.

Others began to run. A motor car buzzed out of the square.

Another followed, men fairly dropping off the running board as it got under way. And the Roswell road was hidden under a thick cloud of dust.

When the first persons reached the spot Frank's body was still warm. The legs and feet showed the deep purple that follows death by strangulation. The hands which were also purple, were distended as if seeking something in front of the body.

Across the upturned face was neatly bound linen handkerchief, concealing the eyes and most of the features. The hair, long, black and wavy, fell back from the brow, tumbled but not disordered.

There was blood on the noose where it squeezed the freshly opened and angina wound made by Convict Creen several weeks ago. The new hemp rope was run through the fork of a large limb fifteen feet from the earth, drawn across and made fast to another tree twenty feet away. There was no lynching of the job. All about the swinging object the thickening crowd peered and caught its breath. There was no loud talking and there was no demonstration.

"I could not bear to look at another human being, hanging like that," said one woman. "But this—this is different. It is all right. It is—the justice of God."

Among the men there was evident a grim satisfaction. No man mentioned a name. No man had a guess to make as to where these men came from. No man had a hint to drop of where they were, where they had gone now that their dreadful work had been done.

In the night they had stormed the State Prison farm; in the night they had swept across miles of countryside, skirting the big town, slipping along by unfrequented roads. In the gray morning light they had approached the town where Mary Phagan lies buried. The rest is a secret locked in the breasts of the men who saw Leo M. Frank "hanged by the neck until dead."

It is now thought that the auto squadron may have met resistance at some point which delayed their progress and threatened their plans. Frank was snatched from the State prison farm at 11:20 last night and the warmth in his body when found at 5:30, nine hours later, showed that the hanging couldn't have been many hours before the discovery.

Every detail was worked out with craft, care and with a fearlessness that shows the avengers to be of desperate character. Today Governor Nat B. Harris announced that he would spare no expense or trouble to run down the lynchers and to punish each to the law's extremity. Former Governor Slaton, who is a visitor at the Pan-American Exposition in San Francisco, said no mercy should be shown to the members of the gang, whom he called murderers.

The machinery of the State was set into action without delay to apprehend the night marauders. The alarm spread its net and posses set out in the saddle to run down kidnapers and lynchers. The hope that lynched Frank is thought to have numbered twenty-five. The members could not have scattered to their homes until long after dawn, judging from the condition of Frank's body, which showed not the slightest trace of rigor mortis.

All the cunning and daring of the Ku Klux raiders was displayed in the slaying of Leo Frank. Public sentiment is aroused the country over. Law-abiding citizens of Georgia are incensed.

The first precaution taken by the irate squadron of lynchers was the cutting of all telegraph and telephone wires—that is the band supposed they had severed them all, but they forgot a single strand which communicates with Augusta, and it was over that the news was flashed to an appalled world.

This wire was so seldom used that the lynchers overlooked it, and it was well, for otherwise the news of the night's horrors might have been delayed many hours longer. No sooner was the first inkling given by a man who said he was "Creen," and who, instead of getting a friend, got an official instead, than every sheriff and deputy in Cobb and neighboring counties were on the gallop.

It was the tightening of this cordon that undoubtedly interfered with the completion of the melodramatic touch of hanging Frank to a tree in the very cemetery where Mary Phagan lies.

After they left the prison officials bound and gagged and handcuffed, and had clapped a gag over the mouth of Frank and bound his arms, the lynchers sped over the Roswell highway toward Little River. Confused reports announced that the body of Frank had been found in Little River, but these were soon corrected.

After insuring their safety by cutting the wires the automobile squadron stopped a short distance from the State Prison Farm. Some were posted as pickets to guard against intrusion and others with pistols drawn overpowered Warden J. T. Smith and other guards asleep on the porch of the warden's residence.

The guards claim the hum of motors—they say three must have been—eight or ten machines in the party—had awakened them, but before they could realize what was happening they were looking into the business ends of pistols in hands that knew how to use them.

It was as easy to overpower, gag and bind the two guards in the dormitory, and with the warden and his men all snugly bound and accounted for, the masked band sped away in a cloud of dust.

Sheriffs from the surrounding country were put upon the trail. A posse from Milledgeville was led by J. H. Ennis, representative of Baldwin County.

Three companies of militia were assembled ready to be rushed to any point at a moment's notice. Sheriffs' officers throughout the State were notified by Governor Harris to be on the alert.

Warden Smith declared he was taken completely by surprise and was unable to prevent the abduction of the prisoner.

It was over the grave of Mary Phagan in Marietta at the time that Frank's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, that a score or more of Georgians met and swore to avenge her death with the death of Leo Frank.

Other similar secret organizations were said to have banded together for the express purpose of murdering Frank. It is believed that the raid, and capture of Frank, was accomplished by such a gang.

After the attack by William Creen, a life term convict, who slashed Frank's throat with a huge butcher knife, the activities of these secret societies was believed to have ceased. It was on account of this belief, friends of the prison authorities protest, that vigilance was relaxed.

The gang, thrilled by Creen's nearly successful in killing Frank. By the smallest possible margin the jugular and carotid arteries escaped being severed. As it was the loss of blood and the terrible shock made recovery doubtful for a long time. Only the indomitable courage of Frank pulled him through.

When Frank, at that time was informed that his chances of recovery were slight, he calmly announced that he was ready to face his maker in the same cool manner in which he bore the strain of months of suspense and agony awaiting the execution of the sentence against him.

Mrs. Frank, wife of the unfortunate prisoner, was immediately notified of the raid. She was prostrated. Family friends of the Franks declared that such a raid could be possible only with the assistance or the connivance of the prison officials.

The loyal devotion of his wife, Frank had always declared, had been the only thing to keep up his courage through his long fight. When he was slashed by Creen she spent every hour the prison officials would allow her at the bedside of her husband. She never gave up hope of seeing him cleared of the charges against him and free once more.

The commutation of Frank's sentence of death to life imprisonment, she believed, was merely the preliminary to his release. It was the action of Governor John M. Slaton in commuting the sentence which drew on him all the wrath of the worst elements of Atlanta.

Mobs formed in the street and marched on the Governor's mansion when his decision was announced, and were prevented from violence only by the quick action of the State militia, called out by the Governor and thrown about his house.

Several thousand soldiers, including two regiments of infantry, batteries of artillery and troops of cavalry guarded the State House and the mansion, according to it.

STABBED IN PRISON.

Immediately after the inauguration Governor Slaton went to New York, His stand in the Frank matter was almost unanimously commended by newspapers throughout the country. The Governor said later he would probably have pardoned Frank had he been asked to do so.

On July 17, nearly a month after Frank had been sent to jail, he was attacked by William Creen, a negro convict. The stabbing caused a big sensation and charges were made that the stabbing was instigated by Frank's enemies.

Frank's life was saved by the prompt action of another convict, a physician, who gave him prompt attention until regular medical aid arrived. Dr. W. J. McNaughton, the convict who saved Frank's life, was a lifer. He has since been recommended for a pardon.

"DRIVE OUT THOSE WHO JUSTIFY THIS OUTRAGE!"—SLATON

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—When told early today that a mob had taken Leo M. Frank from prison and probably lynched him, ex-Governor John M. Slaton of Georgia, who is a visitor at the exposition here, said:

"The act was a consummate outrage and every man engaged in the lynching ought to be hanged, for he is an assassin. Such an act is contrary to the civilization of Georgia and one which every good citizen will condemn.

"I can use no language too condemnatory. I believe the Governor of Georgia will use all the power of the State to punish the malefactors, who disgraced the civilization of Georgia. The act is one of cowardice, which belongs alone to the assassin.

"I believe the newspapers of Georgia will reflect the sentiment of the State in such universal condemnation as that there can be no mistake as to the position and opinion of my native State. I am shocked and horrified beyond expression. Any man who approves of the acts of this mob is unworthy to be a Georgian.

"Any man or newspaper which condones this offense ought to be driven out of the State. But the conduct of this miserable mob of assassins is the conduct of the same sort of people who shoot a man behind a fence, or murder a woman from a cowardly heart.

"If I knew of any stronger language I would use it."

Governor Henry C. Stuart of Virginia, who says best people of South unite in deploring such acts of violence.

Governor Henry C. Stuart of Virginia, who is in Boston to attend the conference of Governors' week, today vigorously deplored the lynching of Leo M. Frank at Milledgeville, Ga. To the AMERICAN Governor Stuart said:

"I deplore with all my soul such performances as this high-handed violation of the law in the case of Frank.

"I cannot condemn such outbreaks with sufficient force to express my intense feeling against such a procedure.

"I do not, however, think that this new turn of affairs had anything to do with race prejudice against the Jews in the South. No person any longer regards nationalities in the South. Not once in the trial of Frank do I believe race prejudice entered. Judge and jury acted without regard to the nationality of the man on trial for his life.

"The better element throughout the entire South has the highest respect for law and order, and would not under any circumstances endorse the lynching which has taken place in my own State of Virginia no lynching has occurred for more than fifteen years. Lynching in the whole South has undergone rapid diminution in the past few years.

"This trial of Frank, with the subsequent outrages, cannot be attributed to any antipathy against him as a Jew, but springs from the feeling of resentment among all Southern people against attacks on young womanhood.

"With the increase of education among the Southern people, I believe such outrages will pass, as they are in fact already frowned upon by the better educated classes everywhere. No one in the South will for a moment countenance this morning's crime against the State of Georgia and the perpetrators, if caught, should be summarily punished."

FRANK CASE HAS ATTRACTED ATTENTION OF WHOLE NATION

The crime for which Leo M. Frank was convicted was the murder of Mary Phagan, fourteen, employed in the National Pencil Factory, at Atlanta, Ga., of which Frank was superintendent, on April 26, 1913.

The case, on account of its many peculiarities, attracted nation-wide interest. It is the most celebrated murder case in the history of the South. Many sensational stories in Frank's behalf. One of the most important was from Massachusetts. It was headed by ex-Governor Foss, who personally took it to Georgia.

The evidence that convicted Frank was given by a disreputable negro, who implicated himself in giving it and who was sent to jail as an accessory. His term has now expired.

Notwithstanding this, the popularity of the South seemed to be largely against Frank and when his death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Slaton, the Governor was severely criticised and the commutation of sentence was followed by rioting which required several regiments of soldiers to quell.

GIRL SLAIN IN FACTORY.

The day of the murder was a holiday, but Frank was in his office and the girl left her home for the factory to collect a small amount of pay due her. She was never again seen alive. The next day her body was found with rags stuffed in her mouth.

An incoherent note was found on the body. Suspicion fell on Frank and James Conley, the negro sweeper of the factory.

They were both arrested. Conley admitted he wrote the note, but said he did so at the request of Frank. Frank denied this. The trial began July 28. Conley testified that Frank trapped the girl in his office, assaulted her and then strangled her. On August 25 the jury found Frank guilty and Judge Hill sentenced him to death.

Then began what is perhaps the most noted legal struggle the country has ever seen. Frank's friends and relatives rallied to his support. Many of them were wealthy and several independent investigations were undertaken, which claimed to show Frank innocent.

THREATS AGAINST FRANK.

Public feeling ran high. Every move known to the legal fraternity was made by counsel for either side. The case got into politics and was made a political issue. Threats were made of harm to Frank.

The case in its various phases was carried three times to the Georgia Supreme Court and three times to the United States Supreme Court. Finally on April 13, 1915, two years after the crime, Frank was defeated in the last possible legal move that could be made to save his life. This was when his appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States for a review of his case was denied.

Frank's friends then petitioned the Prison Board for a commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment. This was denied. His friends then appealed direct to the Governor. It was at this time that public feeling ran higher than at any preceding time during the case. Threats were freely made against the Governor's life and there was much rioting in the streets of Atlanta.

Finally, secretly and at midnight, the Governor granted commutation of sentence on June 21, the day before Frank was to be hanged. Frank was spirited away to jail at Milledgeville, Ga., before the people knew of the reprieve.

Immediately there was a tremendous outburst of public feeling. Crowds paraded the streets. The Governor was hanged in effigy. He retreated to his country home, where a howling mob stormed its gates. Two regiments of militia were called out to protect the Governor.

The commutation of sentence was

A strange story of love and adventure, begins in the September Cosmopolitan — now on the news-stands.

When Mr. Chambers turned over to COSMOPOLITAN the completed manuscript of "The Girl Philippa" he stated that he had finished it with real regret, so greatly had he enjoyed writing it.

For "The Girl Philippa" is a wonderful story.

Philippa is a secret agent of the French Government. The plot revolves around her dangerous service to her country; and the spy systems of the European nations now at war are shown at work in all their sinister, amazing detail.

And out of the perilous adventures of this brave young woman Mr. Chambers has woven a romance of sheer delight—a story of a love so great, so pure, so beautiful, so idealistic, that one's heart and soul are gripped as in a mighty vise, and thrilled as never before.

"The Girl Philippa" is a great story. It will add many thousands to the millions of Americans who appreciate Mr. Chambers' undoubted genius as a writer of brilliant fiction. You must read it.

Denies French 'Poison Gas.'
PARIS, Aug. 17.—The Ministry of War declares published statements that the French troops are using poisonous gas are untrue.

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction may be successfully treated at home by an internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, you know someone who is troubled with head noises or who has catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and give it to them, and you will have been the means of making that poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription is prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly thirty per cent of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness or dizziness in any form, should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

Thin Men and Women

DO YOU WANT TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG?

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with starchy foods; rubbing on worthless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes unheeded. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract properly utilizes the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere, which seemingly embodies the elementals needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This preparation is called Sargol and much remarkable testimony is given as to its successful use in flesh building. Sargol, which comes in the form of a small non-injurious tablet, taken at meals and mixing with the digesting food, tends to promote its efficient and muscle building power, so that the food you eat is more completely changed into the body nourishing elements of the body. You can readily picture the transformation that additional and previously lacking flesh-making material should bring with your cheeks filling out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappearing and your taking on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of this vicinity have it and are authorized to refund your money if weight increase is not entirely satisfactory. A guarantee found in each large package.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported cure should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

'ROOKIES' BEGIN TARGET FIRE AT CAMP

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The work of making soldiers out of business men was resumed here today to a merry rattle of musketry. The Boston contingent, 287 strong, was out for its morning's "mush" at the first sound of reveille. There was not a single sun blistered nose missing in its high-browed ranks when the sergeants lined 'em up for the daily roll.

The day's work included target practice, drills in close and extended order formations, skirmishing, the manual-of-arms, artillery, cavalry and infantry practice, and a two-mile "hike." Outside of that, and the calisthenics, there's nothing doing for the "rookies" tomorrow.

Within a few minutes after breakfast Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, Benjamin Joy, Fred E. Bolton and several other prominent Boston "rookies," were swinging out of camp with the second battalion for their first target practice at the butt-ridges. The target practice was held on the regular army range, the "rookies" peppering the targets—on Plattsburg hills—while standing, kneeling or lying down at distances ranging from 200 to 500 yards.

While the rattle of this early morning musketry was chasing all the neighborhood cows in the general direction of Canada, the machine squad, with Percy Haughton and several other former Harvard football stars serving in the lineup, was deftly blowing a stock of other popularly used targets to bits down back of the regular butt-ridges.

The members of the second battalion who got their first experience in the use of the standard army ammunition yesterday, are today rubbing out the memory with Omega Oil. Most of them are today painfully asserting that the kick of an army mule isn't in it with the kick of a modern Springfield.

Two of the Boston "rookies" in the battalion were among those who turned in the highest scores. They were Private J. H. C. Pannhallow, Harvard '16, who made eighty-seven out of a possible 100, and Private Roger Griswold Harvard '14, who finished with an eighty.

OLDEST "ROOKIE" HAPPY.

Private Norman Cabot started off with a couple of bulls eyes, but then lost his aim. That he could do it after that was a fifty-four. Private Winthrop Pickering, the oldest "rookie" of them all, nearly 50 years, ed target No. 17. He turned in a sixty-four, and then "hiked" the two dusty miles back to camp as happy as a major-general.

Private Philip L. Spaulding, head of New England Telephone Company, was another Boston "rookie" who covered himself with glory as well as powder smoke. He scored three bulls eyes in succession, and then just to show how easy it was done, changed targets and shot another. He turned in a score of seventy-six.

Mayor Mitchel of New York with four bulls eyes to his credit, made a score of seventy-eight. The day's highest score, ninety-one, was made by Frank L. Meager of Company D.

With the close of the work at the ranges, which lasted until after sundown, the "rookies" trooped back to camp singing, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." The sight was one of the most inspiring seen here since camp was opened.

PROMOTE 3 BOSTON MEN.

R. E. Shlesinger, Harvard '99, was today made a corporal in Company B. Other Boston "rookies" just promoted are J. H. Proctor and James Amory Sullivan, both of whom have been made corporals in Company E. The "rookie" engineers will today begin work on trench building. The squad includes many Bostonians, including President Spalding of the Telephone Company, Herbert A. Giddey, A. H. Gargelen and A. B. Tenney.

The plans for the "war game" with which the tour will close are now being pe ected by the camp officers. In these games all branches of the service will take part. The "battles" will be waged over some seventy miles of territory up and down the shores of Lake Champlain.

Ex-President Roosevelt came up to the Lake Champlain Hotel, Bluff Point, three miles from here yesterday and entertained two of his sons, Archie and "Teddy," Jr., both "rookies," at dinner. He did not visit the camp, however, and went away as suddenly and mysteriously as he had come.

Old General Humidity joined forces with Old King Sol in an unsuccessful effort to route the "rookies." It was the hottest day they have experienced since camp was established. The temperature rose to 90 degrees. Despite the heat, however, the men stood the gaff like "veterans."

FULL PROGRAM FOR GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE

Governor Walsh announced today the complete program for the Governors' Conference, to be in Boston, from Tuesday to Friday of next week.

The program includes the review of the North Atlantic fleet, off Boston Light, on Wednesday afternoon. Secretary Daniels will come on the Dolphin to review the fleet.

The Governor also announces, tentatively, the mobilization of the State troops in Boston on Thursday afternoon, August 26. It remains for the executive council at its meeting today to authorize the mobilization, which is urged by the leading business men of Boston as well as by the Governor. If there is an mobilization the Governors will be the guests that afternoon of the Cambridge Board of Trade.

The program includes the Italian Ball, given under the auspices of Mrs. John Hoyt Hammond.

The combined meetings of the Governors and former Governors will be in the Senate chamber of the State House and will be public. The program:

TUESDAY, AUGUST 24—Morning, 10:30 a. m. Addresses of welcome, Governor Walsh and Mayor James M. Curley; response, Governor William H. Taft; "Possibilities of the Governors' Conference," address by Governor Edwin L. Norris of Montana. Luncheon. Informal luncheon at 1 p. m. by Governor Walsh, attended by members of the conference.

Afternoon, 2 p. m., Former Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey presiding. "Governor's Initiative," address by former Governor William H. Mead of Virginia; "Governor's Relation to Executive Departments of State," address by Governor Robert L. Williams of Oklahoma. 3 p. m., Automobile tour of Boston, Metropolitan parks; buffet luncheon at Country Club, Brookline. 5 p. m., Governors and ex-Governors and their families by Governor Walsh in Hall of Fame, State House.

WEDNESDAY, August 25—Morning—10:30 a. m. Governor Francis E. Clark of South Dakota presiding. "Governor's Power of Appointment," address by Governor Winfield S. Hammond of Minnesota. "State Control of Water Power," address by former Governor James H. Hawley of Idaho. "State or National Control of Water Power Sites," address by Governor George A. Carlson of Colorado.

Afternoon—Immediately upon adjournment of the morning session, the visiting Governors will become the guests of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and will embark on a battleship provided by the national government for a trip to the mouth of the harbor, entering North Atlantic fleet of Boston Light, thence to Gloucester Bay. At Gloucester the Governors will attend the Italian Festa held under the auspices of Mrs. John Hays Hammond. In the evening, a dinner will be tendered the Governors at the Corinthian Yacht Club, Marblehead, by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

THURSDAY, August 26—Morning, 10 a. m. Governor Holland H. Spaulding of New Hampshire presiding. "Abolition of Useless Boards and Bureaus," address by Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. "Governor's Control of Militia," address by Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois. "Duty and Responsibility of the Governor Dealing With Prisoners," address by former Governor Cole Blease of South Carolina. "Short Ballot," address by Governor Moses Alexander of Idaho. Luncheon, guests of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, place to be announced later.

Afternoon, 2 p. m., Governor Herbert W. Marshall of Missouri presiding. "Governor's Veto," address by Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York. Parade of Governors, Militia of Massachusetts, mobilized especially for the review by and inspection of the visiting Governors, or drive through Cambridge, Concord and Lexington, guests of the Cambridge Board of Trade.

Evening: Review of river carnival on Charles River in honor of the visiting Governors by the Waltham Board of Trade.

FRIDAY, August 27—Morning—10 a. m.—Governor Samuel V. Stewart of Montana presiding. "Conservation of Natural Resources," address by Governor Ernest Lister of Washington. "Conservation of Mankind and Natural Resources," address by Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York. "Development of the West," address by former Governor Elias M. Ammons of Colorado. Lunch-eon—Details to be announced later.

Afternoon—2 p. m.—Governor Edward J. Manning of South Carolina presiding. "Duty of the Citizen and the State's Duty in the Matter of National Defense," address by Governor James F. Fielder of New Jersey.

Evening—Executive session for election of officers and other business.

Evening—Entertainment to be announced later.

Pedler Assaulted by Auto Driver

Constantine Spiliolulos was assaulted today by some unknown automobile driver. The victim told the police he was pushing his hand cart of vegetables along Devonshire street near Water street when an automobile driver stepped from his machine and struck him in the face, breaking his glasses and pushing a piece of the glass into one of his eyes. A person who saw the assault gave the plate numbers to Spiliolus and the police are trying to locate this person and the alleged assailant.

Two in Court as Auto Thieves Today

Two men were in court today as auto thieves. John Powers, eighteen, of Burney street, Roxbury, was found guilty in the Roxbury court of stealing a machine belonging to former Representative Francis L. Daly and was given a suspended sentence of three months. Edward J. Welch of Commonwealth avenue, Allston, charged with the larceny of an automobile valued at $1,600 from the Chalmers Motor Car Company, pleaded not guilty in the Roxbury court and was held in $500 till August 25.

Ask for Funds to Help Poor Mothers

The 200 fired Boston mothers with their children who have been taken for a two weeks' rest to Rosemary Cottages, Eliot, Me., during the past Summer by the Rev. D. W. Waldron, superintendent of the City Missionary Society, have caused a deficiency of nearly $4,000 in the treasury of that society. An appeal for funds has been issued. Contributions will be received, at the Congregational House, No. 12 Beacon street.

LOCAL BREVITIES

The State Board of Charity has been assured that the British, French, Austrian and German consuls will care for all families left destitute by reservists returning to fight under their native flags. Fearing that the most serious cases of destitution will occur in the North End, the State Board has requested the Italian government to inform it what steps will be taken to care for the poor.

The rush of Italian reservists to enroll themselves at the Italian consulate in Boston continued today and at noon 200 had enlisted and there was a waiting line of 50 people. Yesterday more than 450 enlisted.

Miss Katherine Kelley and Pearl Emerick have been summoned to appear in the Municipal Court to explain their appearance in an Irish parading car on Boston streets Sunday, the car bearing announcements of the engagement of Andrew Mack at the Majestic Theatre. The police alleged a violation of the law against unnecessary labor on Sunday. The girls were dressed as colleens. The car was driven by John McCarthy, who has also been summoned into court.

Five motorcyclists were before the Waltham Court today on complaint of the Watson police for operating their machines in the town with mufflers cut out. The complaints followed a crusade against violators of the automobile laws since a driver speeded away after killing a boy, George Batt. Ernest Johnson, E. A. Schormack and Fred Lynch were each fined $5.

Frank M. Bump and Charles G. Wood, members of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, have gone to Springfield, where they will make an effort to bring about a settlement of the street railway strike which has been in progress there for several days.

John J. Daley of Brookline, a well known Boston lawyer, is under consideration by Governor Walsh as a possible appointee as Judge of the Boston Juvenile Court. Daly was a candidate for congress in the old Thirteenth District and was one of the guests of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Democratic Club of Massachusetts.

The Boston & Maine station at Pride's Crossing was broken into last night and the ticket office was robbed of $40 in cash.

Sixty Young Italians left Beverly today for New York, whence they will sail for Italy to fight against Austria. This brings the total up to 500 who have left Beverly to fight.

Delegations from the different women's clubs were present today at the funeral of Mrs. Annie Murray, wife of Major George F. H. Murray of the Ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Coast Guard, president of the New England Women's Club and a member of the New England Women's Press Association.

Rodney Chase of No. 47 Oakley road, Brookline, was found guilty of operating an automobile recklessly at the corner of Beacon and Charles streets on July 22, in the Central Court today, and Judge Burke continued the case until tomorrow and announced he would fine Chase $50. Chase's auto struck I. Tucker Burr, a prominent banker, knocking him to the ground.

MOOSE LEADERS MOVE TO OUST FRENCH

Plans were afoot today to oust Stephen E. French of Orange from the office of secretary of the Progressive State Committee.

When the State Committee meets again in Boston the party leaders will demand his retirement.

The only alternative they will leave him, it was said today, will be to satisfactorily explain his sudden fondness for Samuel W. McCall and Calvin Coolidge, candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, respectively.

In letters to the press Mr. French has ordered the Republican candidates. He has likewise retained his office as secretary of the Progressive State Committee and manifested a keen desire to know what the party leaders were doing at all times. Real Progressives hold this to be inconsistent.

Senator Lodge, whose campaign for Senator in 1916 first came to light in a big "non-partisan" reception at Lynn, is scheduled to snap the whip of party harmony at the big Republican outings of the future. The sage of Nahant will speak tomorrow at the outing of Melrose, Malden and Everett Republicans at Suntaug and on Saturday at the Essex Club outing at the same place. He has promised to appear also at Riverside, August 28, for the outing of the Newton, Wellesley, Waltham, Natick and Framingham Republicans.

Wait Arrival of Sacramento Today

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—No word had been received here up until 11 o'clock today from the gunboat Sacramento, which has on board the Brazilian minister to Mexico and his family and which was caught in the hurricane that swept the Gulf of Mexico. Secretary of the Navy Daniels said he thought the Sacramento would reach New Orleans some time today.

General Black Dies in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—General John C. Black, Civil War Veteran, former Congressman, former United States Commissioner of Pensions and a member of the United States Civil Service Commission, died suddenly in his room in the Palmer House today. He was commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. in 1903.

Derry G. A. R. Man, 83, Dies.
TILTON, N. H., Aug. 17.—Otis T. Buttrick, eighty-three, of Derry, is dead at the New Hampshire Soldiers' Home. He was a member of the Seventh New Hampshire Volunteers.

THREE PARTIES FILE STATE TICKETS

The State tickets of the three leading parties were completed for the primaries when the time expired, at 5 o'clock today, for filing nomination papers with the Secretary of State.

The Progressives completed their State ticket and also filed papers for William Shaw, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, who will contest the Progressive nomination with Nelson B. Clark of Beverly.

Former Governor Foss threw his usual share into the politicians. Mr. Foss' papers for the Republican nomination for Governor had not been filed at 1 o'clock, but his secretary assured Enquirer newspapermen that the papers "would certainly be filed."

Governor Walsh's papers were filed by the Democratic State Committee, as were the papers of Edward P. Barry of Boston for Lieutenant-Governor. The Cushing and McCall papers were already complete.

Councillor Guy A. Ham of Boston and President Calvin Coolidge of the Senate will fight it out for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. For State auditor, there is a three-cornered Republican fight between Senator Hadley of East Boston, Samuel W. George of Haverhill and the present auditor, Alonzo B. Cook, who is playing a lone hand against the Republican machine.

A contest before the Ballot Law Commission will ensure over the papers of John H. Thompson of Worcester, Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, twenty-seven of whose signatures were turned down by the Worcester registrars of voters because the signers wrote the word "city" instead of "Worcester" after their names.

Forgery has been alleged in twenty-three Progressive signatures from Lynn, which the Lynn registrars at first refused to certify, but later sent in, certified, to the Secretary of State. The signatures will stand unless further protests are made.

Probe Report of Armed Boat Building

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels today ordered a searching probe into the report that armored motorboats are being manufactured in this country for shipment to Russia. He declared that such a practice is plainly a violation of neutrality. The boats, it was reported, were for use against German submarines in the Baltic.

Brooks Brick Plant Burned in Maine

BREWER, Me., Aug. 17.—Fire today destroyed the power and machine plant of the Brooks Brick Company. The plant included engine and boilers, clay mixers, brick and tile machinery, also wood working machinery owned by the Peavery Manufacturing Company. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

Thousands of Men's Shirts in Our Last Sale This Summer

all from our own stocks and at savings that should whisk them away

Why
Last spring we bought thousands of yards of shirtings when a big shirt house collapsed. We have sold thousands of shirts from this purchase at prices that would never have been possible. But the season is late, new shirts are on their way, and STILL LOWER PRICES become the rule tomorrow to make a quick clearing and empty chests.

70c
Cool Cotton Crepe Shirts, practically all of imported fabric, made up in this country; all have soft double cuffs. Fresh, clean and right-to-the-minute in colorings, 70c.

95c
Woven Corded Madras Shirts, in medium colors or plain white; negligee or pleated fronts; laundered attached cuffs; very far from usual 95c value.

$1.35
Silk and Cotton Mixed Shirts, all with soft double cuffs; patterns and colorings usually found in much higher priced shirts. Better come early. $1.35.

At 8:30
Best selection and more careful attention is yours early tomorrow. It's cooler, too. We would advise being on hand as soon after 8:30 as possible.
Special tables and extra salespeople have been secured to help you

Today Is an Open Date for Boston Baseball "Fans"

Today is an open date in Boston baseball. The Braves got in this morning from Philadelphia, but will rest up for the big opening at the new park tomorrow. The Red Sox, after a successful home stand, are headed for Chicago, where they open a 6-free-game series tomorrow. Thus, Boston "fans" will have to worry along without seeing a regular big league game of baseball for at least one day.

Lee Axworthy and Williams Harness Kings

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 17.—Lee Axworthy and Williams were crowned, respectively, trotting and pacing kings, following two of the most sensational match races witnessed by the horse world in years, at the North Randall track.

In the first heat of the Axworthy-Volo contest the latter trotted the mile in 2:02, tieing the world's stallion mark and creating a new record for a four-year-old stallion. In the next two heats Axworthy won in 2:03¼ and 2:04¼, making an average time for a three-heat race 2:03 1-6, a new world's record.

Food for the Sport Fans

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

YOU CAN'T SATISFY THEM.

A baseball fan can watch a fight and have a joyous time
By sitting in the open air and laying down a dime.
And yet he kicks and says it is a most atrocious crime.

A fight fan lays three dollars down to see two persons fight.
The speed that greets his eyes would fill a ball fan with delight.
And yet he yells for blood and gore and kicks with all his might.

Why not, when baseball games are rough and boxing bouts are tame,
Why not suggest that baseball fans take up the boxing game
While fight fans watch the baseball stars who kick and bite and maim?

One of these days Eddie Kasvin will be tempted to introduce a bill to legalize baseball.

Decatur, Ill., has quit baseball, but it hasn't anything on Cincinnati, O.

One of our valued contemps speaks of "athletics and football." We know men who are connected with baseball and sport.

Another faux pass is committed by the scribe who informs us that Frank Gotch has quit wrestling to go into business.

Ad Wolgast must have earned at least a draw with Joe Welling. The most Larney Lichtenstein claims is that Welling had a shade.

NURSERY RHYMES.

Old Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
To get her poor dog a bone.
But when she got there
The cupboard was bare,
So she had to send out to the ball Park.

We wondered at the sudden warmth of the atmosphere in this vicinity until we learned that John R. Robinson had arrived in our midst.

We fail to see the necessity of an injunction restraining Armando Marsans from playing baseball for Cincinnati. Nobody who signs with Cincinnati plays baseball.

It is hard to understand how an umpire can become overcome by a gas explosion after having repulsed so many gas bombs from John Evers.

Young Ahearn threatens to join the British army. Boxers who have met him agree that he can outdistance any shell the Krupps can make.

Joe Cox is the latest heavyweight to step Arthur Pelkey, but we fear he will not be the last.

Cub fans claim that Hank O'Day is their Jinx. At least he was when he was manager.

TEMPUS FUGIT.

There was a time when baseball clubs were grabbing wealth and fame,
And one who paid six bits could see a portion of a game.

It was a costly pastime then, but now there comes a time
When one can get a seat in front and only pay a dime.

And if this merry war keeps on the rooters, soon or late,
Will holler for a dime before they enter at the gate.

We have seen some alleged big-league ball clubs which, if they sold tickets at six for a quarter, would be guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Sam McVey, having whipped Sandy Ferguson, is going after the rest of the young heavyweights. His next logical move is to challenge Tom Sharkey.

"Jess Willard," quoth Jack Curley, "is willing to fight Johnson for a side bet of $25,000, Johnson having publicly stated that he will fight Willard for a side bet of $25,000, a sum which I feel sure he cannot raise." Mr. Curley is a game guy.

NOW AND THEN.

The crowd arises now to cheer for
But later he will have to dodge the hammers thrown his way.
good old Hank O'Day.

Boston Golfers Are Beaten in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Jack Hutchinson of Pittsburgh and A. Clarkson of Indianapolis tied for the best-ball medal play with cards of 79. The match was held as a preliminary to the Western open championship. J. C. Beckharth won second prize with 72. Mike Brady of Boston scored 73, Tom Kerrigan got a 74 and Tom McNamara turned in a card of 75.

Tigers are Holding On.

Evers Coming to Boston to Play, as Well as Talk

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Captain Johnny Evers of the Braves, who has been resting at his home in this city since Sunday, leaves for Boston tonight.

He is not only going to get in tomorrow's game with the Cardinals on Braves Field, but intends asking President Tener permission to go before the club presidents at their meeting, carded to be held in the forenoon, and defend himself against the accusations of Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh and Charles H. Ebbets of Brooklyn, that he is a trouble maker.

"Evers wants the chance to go before the National League and let the club owners catechise him as much as they want to. He is confident he will be exonerated from all charges of rowdyism.

The Trojan feels much better than when he reached Troy from Philadelphia and declares he is confident he will be able to get in all the remaining championship games and play at top speed.

Vanitie Won Final Race on a Foul

It is not generally known that the Vanitie and not the Resolute was the winner of the final race between the two cup yachts off Marblehead last Wednesday, when the race for the Kings Cup was called.

The Resolute finished some five minutes ahead of the Vanitie, but was disqualified for fouling the Vanitie just prior to the start.

"THE RABBIT'S" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

I am mighty glad to be back in Boston again after a trip through the West with the Braves. We also played three games in Philadelphia, while we engaged in one battle with the Dodgers in Brooklyn. We played nineteen games since leaving Boston and won nine of them, one in St. Louis ending in a tie. We showed to good advantage in every place but Chicago and Philadelphia. We did not win a single tussle in either of these cities.

Boss Stallings is perfectly satisfied with our road trip. When we left the Hub he stated that the Braves would win the pennant if they could get a fifty-fifty break on the road. We are now six games behind the flying Phillies, but I am confident we will be able to overcome this margin if we are able to get going at our proper clip at our new park at Allston.

* * *

It will be remembered that we did not take the lead in the pennant race last year until after Labor Day. But we nevertheless finished the season with a comfortable margin over our opponents. I am not a bit backward in stating that we will be "up there" in the lead when all has been said and done. The Phillies are now setting the pace, but I do not believe that Moran's outfit will be able to continue its present clip. In my opinion the Phillies will soon crack. I don't think they will finish either first or second.

Injuries have handicapped the work of the Braves this year. Johnny Evers has been out of the lineup most of the time, while "Bill" James has been of little service to the team on account of a lame arm. If Evers and James had been in the game from the start of the season, and in the best of condition, we would today be leading the league by fifteen games. This may appear to be a rather strong statement but I believe that those persons who have closely followed the workings of the National League this year will agree with me.

The Phillies are leading the grand old parade, but Moran has not a great ball club under his command. If it were not for Alexander and Mayer, the Quaker City pennant entry would have been out of the running for the flag months ago. Their small ball park has also aided them. They know the angles of the "band box" and are able to lift long flies into the "bleachers" and up against the right field fence, which is short.

Evers rates the Phillies a little higher than I do. I was talking about Moran's outfit with the Keystone King the other day in Philadelphia. During the course of his remarks Johnny said:

"The Phillies have a fine chance to win the flag. They are well fortified in every position. They are particularly strong on the slab. Alexander is a mighty hurler and may always be relied upon to come through in a pinch. Mayer and Rixey are also top-notch performers and will win many games for the Phillies before the National League flag race ends. Demaree also going good and should be able to go out there and win a number of games during the balance of the season.

"I do not want you to think, 'Rabbit,' that I believe the Phillies are stronger than we are. Such is not the case. Injuries have handicapped us this year, but we should get going properly when we arrive in Boston. The other National League clubs will then have all they can do to prevent us from taking the lead."

Evers made this statement before he left Philadelphia for his home in Troy, but I do not believe that my side partner would make any changes in it if he were interviewed today.

I feel confident that Johnny will be with us for the first game of our series with the Cardinals tomorrow. He is at his home in Troy today, but if he is feeling like his former self, will start for Boston this afternoon.

Our field leader has been very unfortunate this year. He suffered from a severe attack of pneumonia before the season opened, while he had one of his legs shattered in one of our early games.

Evers' presence at second base is a big asset to our team. He's always pulling something new and his wonderful fighting spirit spurs us on and enables us to win many close games.

Springfield Is Not After 1916 Regatta

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 17.—Springfield will not make a bid for the 1916 National regatta; in fact, it is stated in local aquatic circles that the big event is not desired for the next three or four years. Though it has not been customary to pull the big event of two years running in the same city, it is claimed Springfield can secure the 1916 regatta if it so desires.

The regatta coming to a close last Saturday was admirably handled, as President Pilkington of the National Association and his confreres will attest.

Pat Moran Day Arranged.

Wednesday, September 29, will be Pat Moran Day at Braves Field. The Phillies open their final series in Boston on that date. Manager Pat Moran hails from Pittsburg, and that city intends sending a special train of "fans" to Boston so as to suitably honor their fellow townsman.

Camel

answers your call for cigarette satisfaction!

Camel Cigarettes are as new in flavor as they are taste-satisfying. Made of blended choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos, they delight the most fastidious smokers, who prefer them to either kind of tobacco smoked straight.

The Camel blend produces a cigarette that will not bite or parch and that leaves no unpleasant cigaretty after-taste.

Camels have a remarkable mild-smoothness that gives all the desired "body." We tell you, men, you will appreciate every puff of these fine blended cigarettes.

No premiums are given with Camels. Cost of tobaccos blended in these cigarettes prohibits their use.

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages, 20 for 10c; or 10 packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-covered carton for $1.00. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

CRACK CYCLISTS ARE AFTER WILEY

George Wiley, the national middle-distance bike champion, is in for a hot time tomorrow night when he clashes with Clarence Carman. Victor Linart and Georges Seres in a fifty-mile motor-paced race at Revere. Wiley is Carman's tip and should be given some weight in view of Carman's great ride against the title-holder Saturday night.

There is quite a feeling of enmity existing between Wiley and Carman, as it was the former who took the championship away from the "Jamaica Cyclone." Carman has never got over that defeat.

Tomorrow evening's race should border on the phenomenal, due to the fact that Wiley cam, very close to the one-hour record Saturday night, and this without practically any competition from the seventeenth mile on.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

BY RIGHT FIELD

A TRUCK load of ginger ale arrived at the Braves' new yard yesterday. The peanuts got there today and the sandwiches, ice cream, chewing gum, pop corn, peanuts, cigars and cigarettes will be there in ample time tomorrow.

THE autoists will be well looked out for at Allston. There is a big parking space under the direction of the same people who have had that line of work at Fenway Park.

SECRETARY RILEY of the Red Sox can't use his invitation, because he went West last night with the team.

BABCOCK street is the Brave Field stop on the car line. You won't have to tell the conductor tomorrow, however. When you see the crowd get off you'll know you're there.

EIGHT out of the last nine. Oh, you Boston Red Sox! Keep up it to the end of the schedule.

MANAGER CARRIGAN took twenty-two players along Janvrin was in practice before the game, but didn't get into the lineup.

THE purchase by Manager Griffith of the Senators, of Joe Judge and the Buffalo Internationals, is nothing on Chick Gandil. Grimes is mighty sweet on Chicky's ability. However, he considers that Judge is every whit as good as Hal Chase was when he first came into the big test and so he lost no time in getting him, as the AMERICAN told Sunday.

GRIFF may make an outfielder out of Judge, for he is fast and a hitter. The Old Fox is working on the outfield problem, with both the present and the future in mind. Yesterday he sent Kopp to left and moved Acosta to his favorite position of right field. Kopp got one of the five hits off Joe Wood.

SAYLOR CHOICE OVER BALDWIN

ATLAS A. A. PROGRAM.

Matty Baldwin, Charlestown, vs. Wilbur "Young" Saylor, Indianapolis, twelve rounds.

Howard McRae, Cambridge, vs. Johnny Noonan, Dorchester, eight rounds.

Joe Carrol vs. Henry Long, six rounds.

Johnny Mellow vs. Joe Vincent, six rounds.

MATTY BALDWIN and Wilbur "Young" Saylor are ready for their twelve-round bout which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. this evening. It is one of the most important lightweight bouts which has been arranged by the local club this year, and a large crowd is expected to turn out to see the festivities.

Saylor has been made a slight favorite in the betting. The wise men figure that his aggressive style of fighting and ability to land a stinging blow will enable him to breeze in a winner.

The Indianapolis boxer has engaged in two contests in Boston this season. He met Charley White in his first whirl in this man's town. The encounter was called a draw, but the majority of the "fans" who witnessed the tussle were of the opinion that Saylor was entitled to the decision.

Saylor then clashed with Joe Azevedo of California. Azevedo came here with a big reputation, but he was easy for Ray Bronson's protege, who was awarded the verdict after twelve rounds of fighting.

SAYLOR recently was disqualified in a bout with Johnny Griffiths at Akron, Ohio. Ray Bronson says that Saylor was not guilty of any illegal boxing. The Akron Times' boxing expert comes out and backs up Bronson's contention.

Saylor expects to win from Baldwin tonight, but he will have to fight at top speed all of the time if he is to grab off the decision, which will be rendered by Referee Phil Powers. Saylor and Bronson are not strangers. They have already engaged in two bouts. Both contests were no-decision affairs, and honors were pretty even.

HOWARD MCRAE of Cambridge will exchange blows with Johnny Noonan, the Dorchester boxer, in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. McRae and Noonan have already engaged in several stirring battles and should furnish a lively entertainment.

There will also be a couple of good six-round preliminaries.

GILBERT GALLANT today started training for his twelve-round contest with Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn, which will be held at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Gallant believes that he will win from the boy who stopped Joe Rivers in two rounds, and who scored knockdowns in contests with Joe Mandot, Sam Robideau and Jimmy Duffy.

BOSTON boxing lovers were pleased at the announcement that Jack Britton of New York and Ted "Kid" Lewis, the English lightweight, will mix in a twelve-round skirmish at the Atlas Club on August 31. Lewis made a big hit with the "fans" by the way he polished off Mike Glover in their contest here, while Britton has proved on numerous occasions that he is one of the world's best 135-pound boxers.

HARRY WILLS has been selected as a bout to be held in Boston. These two heavyweights are booked to clash at the Atlas A. A. on September 7.

Entire Sox Squad Off for the West

Every member of the Red Sox squad, twenty-two in all, left for Chicago last evening under the chaperonage of Manager Carrigan. Mrs. Carrigan, Mrs. Riley, wife of the club's secretary; Mrs. Ruth and Mrs. Gregg were the ladies in the party. St. Louis and Cleveland will be the scene of the lone two twin bills. The Red Sox will be back at Fenway Park Labor Day.

RING RESULTS

MIDDLEBORO, Me., Aug. 17.—Kaufl Hertz of Washington and Johnny Glover of South Boston won six rounds to a draw. Hertz had a slight shade.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 17.—Joe Chick was awarded the decision over "Soldier" Rivers after twelve rounds of rapid milling.

DENVER, Aug. 17.—Joe Rivers outpointed Stanley Yoakum in their ten-round bout.

New Bedford "Fan" Working Hard for Big Trip

W. H. Greenough, candidates further down in the list have made great headway.

It looks as though there would be quite a few changes in the list, too.

Some of the overconfident fans, who thought their position assured, have been negligent in their task of vote-gathering while some of the other

IF YOU are among the leading nineteen candidates, don't stop hustling for a minute because the time is short now —less than four weeks more—and it would be food bad if you lost out now after all the time and effort spent to get in the lead.

So don't waste a minute—make every day show an increase in your vote total from now until the final vote is published on September 12.

Send in your photographs, candidates, if you have not already done so. You will be surprised how much its publication will help you.

The friends of William H. Greenough of New Bedford are doing all in their power to put him among the leaders. He says: "I have hustled every minute since the start of the contest, and with the help of my friends I hope to win one of those twenty-five FREE trips to all of World's Series Championship games.

Stockbridge Links Attract Big Field

A splendid field of golfers teed off in the 36-hole qualifying round in the annual Stockbridge tournament on the links of the Stockbridge Golf Club this morning. When the new course was formally opened last Friday, John Shepard, Jr., presented handsome trophies to the players turning in the best gross and the two best net, scores.

Walter B. Tuckerman of Washington, with a 77, won the best gross prize, while C. B. McGovern of the Wyantinnuck Club of Great Barrington, and Edward O'Douchar'y of New York, tied for the best net prizes. They will play off their tie today.

Mr. Shepard's house guests at Ravinehurst include Roger Hovey, president of the Stockbridge club; Frank H. Hoyt, the runner-up last year; H. H. Wilder and Francis Outmet.

Willard Won the Fight in the First Round

Jess Willard fought his battle with Jack Johnson in the first round. There were twenty-five more, but the foundation for the victory was laid in the very first one.

Willard has now come, in his autobiography which the AMERICAN has been printing, to the fight in Havana—the actual fight. In tomorrow's chapter he tells his feelings as he first saw Johnson stripped for the fray and he describes that important first round.

It is mighty interesting to see the battle through the eyes of the man who won it.

GREAT BALL PARK OPENS TOMORROW

TOMORROW'S BASEBALL CARD.

10 a. m.—Meeting of National League club presidents at Administration Building, Braves Field.

1 p. m.—Luncheon by President Gaffney and Mayor Curley to Greater Boston Mayors, 100 friends of Mr. Gaffney and newspapermen.

1:30 p. m.—Gates of new park opened.

3 p. m.—World's championship flag raised after parade of both clubs to ringside with bands.

3:15 p. m.—"Play ball."

By RIGHT FIELD

Tomorrow is the day you "fans" have been hoping about—Dedication Day at the new Braves' Field, Allston.

New reports coming in all the time only go to confirm the impression the management have had all along, viz.: that tomorrow is going to be one big day for Boston baseball.

There will probably be a larger attendance of National League presidents and other officials than at any other recent dedication, owing to the fact that a National League meeting is to be held here the morning of the game.

One new item just out is that Clark Griffith, manager of the Senators, has decided to remain here while his team is traveling west, and pitch the first ball at the new park.

This is highly appropriate, as Griffith is credited with being the man who first put baseball into baseball!

GRIFF IN SPOTLIGHT.

They were closely associated in New York several years ago, and when Mr. Gaffney was thinking of buying into the Braves ownership, went to Griff with his plans. Griff advised him to buy and that is one of the reasons why things took the turn that eventually developed into tomorrow's big doings.

All roads will lead to Allston along towards 1 p. m., for the gates will be thrown open at 1:30. A detail of twenty policemen, four of them mounted, will be on hand.

Scores of eager "fans" have already journeyed out to inspect the new yard and all have been amazed by the immense proportions of President Gaffney's achievement.

Everything is ready to the minute for the "fans," and they will fare in every respect as well as if the park had been in operation for months. Things would be all right today, if there was a game scheduled.

THREE FLAGS GOING UP.

There are three flags to be raised—old Glory, the National League pennant and the World's Championship flag.

The National League bunting may not be put up unless tests about to be made show that the flagpole can stand the strain of three flags. But the yellow and blue gonfalon, with the words "World's Champions" upon it, most certainly will be raised to the breeze. Old Glory, too, is going up.

President Tener of the National League, President Gaffney of the Braves and managers and members of the two teams will start the march for the pole at 3 o'clock. Preceding them will be the 104th Regiment Band and the band hired by the Royal Rooters.

Miss Detroit Wins Again.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Miss Detroit won the second race in the series for the Gold Challenge Cup of the American Power Boat Association. Her time was 43 minutes, 58 seconds. Tech, Jr., finished second. The final race will be held today.

No More Pop to Be Sold by Mr. Britton

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 17.—As a result of Sunday's pop-bottle throwing incident, when the "fans" in the left-field bleachers showered 600 or more bottles, not to mention turnips, in profusion at Umpire Byron for calling Captain Johnny Miller of the Cardinals out in a ticklish spot of the first game of the twin bill with the Cubs, President Schuyler P. Britton announces that hereafter no soda water will be sold in the field seats.

Rare Specimens! (The Danny Kind)

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service

WHEN a girl-person's pet sport is chasing rare butterflies—that gold and pink variety with the velvet from faery's coat from Love-Land on his wing-tips, and the color of a girl's first blush tinting their roots—when, I say, she'd rather rout out after this splendid fellow with her net, than to eat strawberries frozen in marshmallows and whipped cream (what is it that folks call her?) a trifler and a coquette.

And when a man is an ardent collector of specimens of the Danny variety—they call him Suspectible!

Girls don't mind being called a coquette. If they're sure you don't mean that when they catch their butterfly they pin him to a card!

But a trifler, who captures her butterfly, is careful of his frail gauze wings, admires and prizes him and then holds him aloft and frees him again into the blue air—ah! That has a better sound.

It means skill and soundness and magnetism. And no maid minds being called a collector of butterflies when a smile goes with it.

But a man blazes and then goes back with anger and wrath if Suscептible is whispered after his name. For Susceptible means—heart of butter than melts in the glow of ANY girl's smile.

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

Told by the Wife Herself

A New Series of Absorbing Interest, Dealing with the Difficulties Encountered by a Resourceful Woman in Her Search for Happiness

SOMETIMES I wonder if I would have taken up settlement work and have used up so much energy to save other girls from the wrong kind of men and the unhappiness they bring if I had known what that work was to bring to me. Sometimes I wonder if the pet effort at cleverness of my girlhood was a sort of premonition. I used to say merrily, "I would never marry a minister—he's too busy with other women's souls; I'll never marry a lawyer — he's too much occupied with other women's wills; but most of all I'd never marry a doctor—he deals so much with other women's spirits, high and low!"

And then I went into settlement work, and one day the head of our house brought Lenore Wallis to me and ask me to take the child over to young Dr. Drayton for a physical examination and a mental test that should disclose why she drudged about her work all unsmiling.

And Lenore Wallis introduced Into my life Peter Drayton, M. D., and James Farley, attorney-at-law.

I am going to tell my story here so that other high-strung, finely sensitized girls may judge for themselves whether it means more of happiness or of misery for a jealous, loving woman to marry a man whose work makes him daily and hourly the father confessor and friend of other women.

Without any reserve, I shall disclose just what it means to be the wife of a popular young physician and to have as the one friend you trust unreservedly his life-long chum, a brilliant and earnest lawyer, who is a charming man as well.

A RETROSPECT.

My story takes me back six years to the day when I brought Lenore Wallis into Dr. Drayton's office—and Peter Drayton into my own life.

When we got to the office there were half a dozen people waiting. One of them was a lovely and discontented creature of the type called "society butterfly"; another was an exotic flower of the tenements. "Five women out of six patients," registered my orderly brain. "If I were the doctor's sweetheart or wife wouldn't I be annoyed?"

But I had never met, never even seen Dr. Drayton then. Presently a maid came up to me and asked if I were Miss Elliott from the Settlement House. It appeared I had an appointment and was to take precedence of the people who were waiting. As Lenore and I went from the room several pairs of feminine eyes darted querying glances at us.

Lenore was a delicate little blonde of sixteen and I had been told that "I had a way of wearing my clothes." Six years ago I, was a pretty girl—young at twenty-seven. Now I am thirty-three—and old. Read and you will see why. Men still talk of my wonderful tawny eyes and the hair that suggests the skin of a chestnut—but I wonder if The One Man notices them.

Dr. Drayton was standing waiting for us with a courtliness rather more specifically masculine than medical. He was not as young as reports of him had led me to suppose, and I regarded his consumption of a personal reflexion between us from which Lenore, the little waif from the Juvenile Court, was shut out.

"So this is Constance Elliott—this city's cleverest settlement worker," said the handsomest man voice I had ever heard. My hand was taken by long slender fingers and my eyes were held by an enveloping glance of steel gray. I am not a short woman, but I felt tiny before the overwhelming pride of the doctor. His broad shoulders had the effect of fairly roofing in everything above my head and making his body my horizon.

THE PERSONAL NOTE.

"Dr. Drayton," Lenore Wallis, a little girl whose interest in life we expect to restore," I began formally and ended with a personal note that I found myself hotly resenting.

Lenore refused to shake hands. She grew surly, instead of indifferent as she was with everyone except me. A cloud of the cold aloofness I had seen holding the child the night I got her out of a slum covered her over again. Her blue eyes were as lifeless as old China, with the glaze worn off and her sallow hair looked drab against a face that seemed burnt out and gray and old and locked from human interpretation by a white-lipped mouth.

The doctor pronounced her a "hyper-thyroid" case and suspected her of a "past." The child neither affirmed nor denied, but held to her story that she had been where I found her one week and only as a scrub woman.

I was so sorry for her during the hour of grilling that I got an impression of the handsome man of thirty before me was an ancient wizard from whom all the humanity had been squeezed by a life devoted to science—an impression that was not so entirely false as the world that knows my husband may think.

When we left Lenore had two prescriptions tightly clutched in her hand. She trudged along stolidly by my side a block and then suddenly she tore the papers to bits.

"Lenore, how can you make my work so hard for me? Now I'll have to phone the doctor for duplicate prescriptions—and say I lost them," I cried nervously.

"Don't lie for me, Miss Elliott. I love 'em up because I don't like your doctor. I admire him, but I don't like him. Don't phone him, please. I'm afraid of him.

Poor little Lenore! Her fear was well grounded.

"I'll have to, child, or Miss Pease will think some one has failed in his duty to you."

A CHILD'S PLEA.

"Oh, the Head won't worry about what's happened to me. She knows you took me to the doctor, and that washes her hands of me. Oh, Miss Elliott, I'm only happy with you. Won't you, won't you take me to be your maid. I'm not proud. I'd love to work for you. I can cook pretty well and I'm a fine mender and I'll keep your little place so clean. Please—please let me come to live with you and take care of you!"

And in a whirl of emotion I scarcely understood the child had seized upon my hand and was covering it with hot kisses punctuated by tears as torrid.

"Would you like that, Lenore? I've been thinking of coming over to the Settlement to live. It's so hard taking care of my own four rooms and doing my work too," I said.

"I heard you tell that to the Head, Miss Elliott, that's why I spoke up. I'd love to take care of you."

It did not seem queer to me than that the child insisted on "taking care" of me. I never have premonitions or warning glimpses of the future. Perhaps fate has been too cruel to send me glimpses of the future. Perhaps she has been too kind!

That evening at eight I phoned the doctor and told him that Lenore's prescriptions had been lost. Back over the phone came that deep, tender voice with a hint of laughter rippling up through its depths:

"May I see you—to talk the case over with you—Miss Elliott? I'll have the prescriptions filled and bring the medicine, so the child may begin on her tonic tomorrow. But now I'm through with my office hours. May I see you?"

I assented. Then I gave him my address and after that I ran down to the florist's at the corner and bought a great bunch of purple lilacs.

That was early in May, six years ago. There are no lilacs in my garden now.

At nine the bell rang. And my heart beat atrociously as I went to the door. Perhaps my pulsing blood was a messenger from fate. But I did not know it.

(Another installment of this series will appear on this page shortly).

Why We Quarreled

No. 2—The Wife Who Told Her Husband Everything

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

MY husband and I quarrel because he cannot see that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

In other words, he is absolutely inconsistent with regard to the matter of confidence. He expects me to tell him all that I do, yet there are times when he snubs me for doing this.

For example, when we were first married he said that, as my husband, he had a right to know of all my worries and troubles. But there have been many occasions when I could see that he was bored when I talked to him of these.

I remember one night when he came home from the office and asked me, as he always does, how things had gone during the day. I was tired and worried, for everything had gone wrong. I said as much.

"Bridget has been as cross as two sticks." I complained. "I have had a headache; the dress that I had cleansed came home from the cleaner's just about ruined, and the pudding I made for dinner is a failure."

I know my husband hates to see a woman cry, so I did not allow my voice even to quaver. Yet he frowned.

"What a nice list of grievances to fire at a man as soon as he gets in after a hard day at the office!" he remarked, sarcastically. "It makes me feel just about as cheerful as a rainy day in the country."

"Well, I declare!" I exclaimed, "haven't you told me often that you expected me to confide everything to you?"

"Everything that's worth confiding," he returned. "But surely Bridget's ill humors and the cleaner's delinquencies are not of such moment that you need inflict them upon me before you've even asked me how I feel. I have troubles of my own, please remember."

THIS WORDS CUT ME.

His words cut me cruelly. Am I not trying to run his home to please him, and is it not in the discharge of my duties along these lines that most of my trials come? If things went wrong at his office, would I not be glad to have him tell me of them? I said as much to him.

"But I wouldn't tell you of them," he declared. "That's just it. Do I ever regale you with an account of my office boy's latest stupidity, or my stenographer's most recent negligence? No, indeed! When I come home I leave all that kind of thing behind me."

"Because you can," I rejoined. "But a woman cannot leave her trials behind her. They are right there before her eyes day and night. I do think that you men might understand that."

Later I got to thinking over what he had said, and the more I thought the more indignant I got. I made up my mind to talk less of my affairs, since he showed so plainly that he was bored by them.

When, a week later, a cousin of mine—a nice fellow who had been my chum when I was a girl—came to town and telephoned me to lunch with him, I went and said nothing about it to my husband for some days. When I mentioned casually that Reginald had been in the city.

"Oh, has he?" Richard asked. "How do you know? Did you hear from him?"

"Yes," I rejoined. "He called me up one day."

"Bridget has been as cross as two sticks," I said.

"But you didn't see him, eh? He didn't come up here?"

"He didn't come up here, but I saw him all the same."

"Where?"

"At a restaurant. I lunched with him there."

"When was that?"

"About a fortnight ago," I replied. My husband flushed angrily. "A fortnight ago!" he exclaimed. "Why didn't you tell me about it?"

I recalled to his memory the fact that he had been annoyed by my telling him some of my experiences. Of course he was displeased and said that I was inconsistent and had wilfully misconstrued his meaning. I let him talk on until he added:

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE.

"Moreover, you deceived me. I have a right to know when you lunch with other men—even with a cousin. Married people should not keep such things from each other. It is not respect."

It is not worth while to relate in detail our argument on this subject. He won out, of course, and I almost let him persuade me into the belief that he was right.

But I had cause before long to alter my reluctant opinion. Happening one day in a certain fashionable tea room, whom should I see sitting in the rear of the dainty little place but my husband and a woman whom I knew by sight, but whom I had not met! She did not know me, and my husband's back was turned to me. Yet I would have recognized that back anywhere.

I did not remain for any tea. I had made up my mind I would talk the matter out with Richard that night. I felt now that I was fully justified in keeping my counsel about my affairs.

That evening when I told my husband I had seen him, he said nonchalantly that he was glad I had not interrupted his talk with Mrs. Blank, as they were discussing an important business matter. Richard is a lawyer and she is one of his wealthiest clients.

As her town house is closed for the Summer, Richard could not meet her there, and he did not like to ask her to come down to his stuffy office. So they met and had a cup of tea together at the tea room.

"But you wouldn't have told me of meeting her if I hadn't seen you, would you?" I charged.

"Certainly not," he replied. "It was a matter that did not concern you. Business and professional men have no right to tell such things."

"Then a woman ought not to be expected to tell her husband the private affairs of herself and her friends," I ventured.

"That is entirely different!" declared Richard.

Being a man, he was satisfied with this verdict. I am not, and never shall be.

Changing Styles in Men

The World Moves Fast, but the Gentleman Is Always the Gentleman

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THE man of today is accused of being coldly businesslike person whose heart resides in his pocketbook and whose sympathies are always with the winning side. That is about as true as the sweeping assertions which deny to the woman of today heart and feeling.

Efficiency is a modern fetish, and sometimes admiration for efficiency carries this beyond the bounds of normal human action into almost machine-like precision.

Money does seem to be the god of the modern world, but, after all, it is mere seeming. An underneath is there a big and busi- and high tension heart and the man who is not and masculine, but fitted in with them.

The world to-day is in a state of rapid change. It is advancing from movement to movement, and the man who does not want to be hopelessly left behind in weak, old fogyishness must move with it.

Efficiency, strong determination and clear-sighted vision of the goal ahead are needed to make the man of to-day successful. He cannot stop to consider trifles. He cannot always be an agreeable and kind as his heart may dictate. But sturdy honesty and the unselfish consideration of others will never go out of style. High ideals are as important as they ever were.

There may be modern "robber" barons and "captains of high finance" whose success is based on the fact that they "get away with it." But there were feudal lords of exactly the same sort in the olden times. And so today, the perfect knight without fear and without reproach" lives even as he did in the days of romance.

Affection and love and longing for a home and all that it means have not gone out of style because a few lonely old bachelors and unhappy married men live in clubs. The modes of living have changed, but the individuals who live a la 1913 are just the mine.

The man of today is not a brute or coldly calculating in his attitude toward woman. He is just a rather selfish, self-absorbed creature who is racing to keep abreast of the times and who gives his best when it is asked of him, and not when his worst is demanded.

After all, people are very much what we think them. They respond to our ideals and to our demands. If we beat at the world kindly and feel that human nature is a pretty decent thing, and that most men are gentlemen and not cowering wolves, we gradually find our theory based on fact.

Styles in men may change but a gentleman will always be gentle and kind and without reproach and a real man will always be willing to fight for the right as he sees it.

In Our Wonderful World

The unconscious act of winking bears a quite important relation to the welfare of the eye. This being the most delicate and sensitive organ of the body exposed to the air, it is in constant need of the protection given by the eyelids, which not only close quickly at the approach of danger, but are employed in washing the surface of the eye. Moistening is required to offset the drying effect of the air, and cleansing to prevent the injurious effects of dirt.

Every time you wink the eye is washed. Inside the eye is the little tear gland, which, as its name implies, is busy storing up the supply of tears. This gland keeps the inside of the lid moist, and you wink automatically whenever the surface of the eye becomes dry or a particle of dust or anything else irritates it. This work is done as often as necessary, and to realize how often it is necessary try how long you can keep your eyes open without winking.

There are nearly one hundred classes of canaries. Norwich or Lancashire, Border or Yorkshire variegated, linard, unflutted, clear cross-bred, crested, self or foul, conveys very little to the average mind, but leaves one marvelling at the variety of singing little creatures whose feathers are every conceivable shade of yellow.

One marvels at the variety of birds that could be kept as pets—finches, linnets, redpolls, tomtits, robins, wrens, stonehats, babblers, red starts, and long-tailed, short-tailed, wag-tailed and crested varieties of all of them in every size, from the minute humming bird to the plump scarlet cockatoo, all vie for that popularity which up to the present has been the monopoly of the canary.

And these little birds are all quite cheap. A few dollars will buy most of them, but on the other hand $2,500 would be asked for a gorgeous crimson bird of paradise, or $5,000 for the canary bulfinch "White Rose," the most expensive song bird in the world.

The wonderful caves of Bellamar, Cuba, to the east of Havana, are located on a plateau as level as a table-top, which present no signs of the existence of such caves. After descending into the earth, however, a picture unfolds itself. Then come many passages, and at length the great "Gothic Temple," two hundred and fifty feet long and eighty feet wide, where the crystal formations produce a brilliant picture with the electric light bringing out a wonderful scheme.

Children's Skin Troubles

Cadum ointment for skin troubles is perfectly safe to apply to the tender skin of infants suffering from tetter, rashes, eczema, chafings, and similar troubles that afflict the little ones. Instant relief is felt as soon as Cadum ointment is applied. The itching is stopped at once, and so soothing and healing is the effect of this new compound that infants resume natural sleep immediately. Cadum is good for any skin trouble in adults as well as children. 10c and 25c.

An Unfailing Way to Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hair growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—Advertisement.

How to Beautify a Summer Soiled Face

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by winds or dirt. Ordinary mercolized wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of snowy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin, but so gently, gradually, there's no discomfort. The worst skin comes off, not in patches, but evenly, in tiny particles, leaving no evidence of the treatment. The younger, healthier under-skin forming the new complexion, in one of captivating loveliness. One ounce of mercolized wax, to be had at any druggist, is enough to remove any tanned, sunburned or pimpled face. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Many skins wrinkle easily with every wind that blows, with heat, worry, etc. An excellent wrinkle remover, because it muscles, is a wash lotion, made as follows: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pt. This gives immediate results.—Advertisement.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINTS

To whiten and beautify the complexion permanently we have found no better preparation than a lotion made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in a half pint of hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This removes any pimples, shiny, muddy or sallow appearance, and will make anyone's skin clear, smooth and velvety. It does not show or rub off like powder and is used a part of the skin; and for removing tan and freckles is unequaled.

It is necessary to shampoo more frequently in the warmer weather because of excessive fluids and the fact that the heat perspires more and is usually more exposed to the weather. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers can be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing, the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

WILLARD WOKE FULL OF 'PEP' FOR FIGHT

By JESS WILLARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

ON the day of the fight I woke up at 9:15, having slept exactly twelve hours without turning. As I opened my eyes I saw my manager sitting by the side of my bed, looking like a mother watching over a sick child.

"How do you feel?" he asked.

"Fine," I said. "Slept like a top."

"More than I did," he grinned. "I came in every hour to see how you were doing."

I took my shower and a slow, careful rub-down. Everybody was looking sort of quiet except Tex O'Rourke and Walter Monahan.

"It's a fine day to kill a landlord," yelled Walter.

"How does it feel to be a 'champeen?'" asked Tex.

Before I sat down to breakfast I did a little shadow boxing off in a corner of the room. I knew they were all watching me like a bunch of hawks.

"How's the pep?" Tom Jones couldn't hold it in any longer. Neither could the others.

"All there," I said, and let me tell you that I was tickled to death when I said it.

"" or "pepper," is a queer thing. Every athlete knows what it is, but it's a mighty hard thing to describe. It's the difference between being on edge and off edge.

Take the case of a baseball pitcher. To all appearances he will be feeling fine and in great shape, but when he starts hurling them over he won't have a thing.

A champion sprinter will fall down the same way. He may be trained to the minute and fit as a fiddle, but when it comes right down to the race some dub will go in and beat him without the least trouble.

It's a matter of nerves, I reckon. Having the "pep" means that you are keyed up to just the right pitch of nervous energy at the right time. There was the first appearance of Jim Jeffries in New York, for instance.

The big boilermaker had cleaned up everything on the Pacific coast. In rapid succession Choynski, Ruhlin, Sharkey and Peter Jackson had learned the full power of Jeff's awful punches and there was nothing more for him to do in San Francisco.

So Delaney took him East and once there he looked around for some sensational way of introducing Jeff to New York public. He finally hit on the scheme of having Jeff meet two men in the same ring on the same night.

Bob Armstrong and Steve O'Donnell were the men picked to act as trial horses for the young California giant. Jeff agreed to take them on for ten rounds each and win by knock-outs just to show how good he was.

To everybody's suprise Arm strong not only stayed the ten rounds, but was strong and willing at the finish. After the bout it developed that Jeffries had broken his thumb in the ninth round and the O'Donnell bout was called off.

The howl that went up drove Jeffries and Delaney back to San Francisco. The sporting editors couldn't think of names bad enough to call the big boob who had come east with such a flourish of trumpets.

The explanation of it all was that Jeff simply didn't have his "pep." He had trained faithfully enough, but when he went into the ring he was as slow as molasses and his punches lacked all their usual speed.

That's why Jones and the rest of the crowd looked so anxious on the morning of the fight. Was luck with me, and had I waked up full of the old pep?

Well, I had. Never in my life do I expect to feel better than I did on the morning of the fight. I wanted to run and jump and I ate with the appetite of a grizzly bear.

"I've got a thousand in my jeans," whispered Jones. "Better get it down, hadn't we?"

"We owe it, don't we?" I asked.

"I should say we do, and a whole lot more."

"Well," I said, "it isn't our money then. We'd be gambling with other people's money and I don't think I'd feel very good about it, Tom."

After breakfast we sat around and had our last council of war. It had been agreed from the first that when I got into the ring I was to do my own fighting.

All the natives and come in to town just for the sake of being on hand, I reckon, for hardly any of them looked as if they had spy money to buy a ticket. When I rode out to the race track the machine went through crowds that packed the pavement from curb to doorsteps.

All the swells were out, for there was to be a sort or double bill, you know. After the fight the races were to come off and the $1,500 Menocal Handicap was to take place.

All morning it looked like rain, and I never watched the skies so hard in all my life. You see, I was fighting for a percentage of the net receipts and unless there was a pretty big crowd I had no chance to get a cent.

But towards noon the weatherman heard my prayers, I reckon, for the sun came out and when we went into the ring at 1 o'clock the sun was shining as bright as you please.

Word came to me early that Johnson had saved a seat near the ring for his wife.

"He thinks he's going to win," said Jones. "He'd never let her see him take a beating, you can bet your bottom dollar on that."

Win or lose, I was glad that my wife wasn't there. Even if she had been in Havana you wouldn't have seen her at the fight.

Before we left training quarters word came to us of the arrangements that had been made for keeping order. The Cuban government was very much afraid of race riots and had offered the fight management the free use of troops.

Tomorrow: Willard will describe the great fight that made him champion of the world).

WAR ISSUES LED RISE IN N. Y. MARKET

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled higher in the last hour, although a number were below their high for the day. Among New York issues to show largest gains were U. S. Steel 3/4, Crucible 1, General Electric 1, Goodrich 1¼, Maxwell 1¼, Westinghouse 2¾, Willys-Overland 1¾, U. S. Rubber 1, American Smelting 1¼, Reading 1¾, Union Pacific ¾, Lehigh Valley ¾, New Haven ¾, Steel common 1¼, Anaconda 1¼, Chino ¾ and Utah ¾. Bethlehem was off 3, American Locomotive 1¾, Studebaker ½, Pressed Steel ½, Canadian Pacific ½ and St. Paul ¼.

In Boston Calumet & Hecla was up 14, Copper Range 1¾, Granby 1, North Butte 1¼, Mohawk 1½, Lake 1½, Tamarack 2¼, Winona 2, Osceola 2, United ¾, Fruit 1¾, U. S. Smelting 1, American Zinc ¾ and Inland Creek ¾. Shannon was off ¾, Greene-Cananea 1 and Shoe Machinery 1¼.

STERLING EXCHANGE WEAK.

Sterling exchange was still at the lowest level, early quotations being $4.64 for demand and $4.65 for cables.

The value of an English monetary pound has depreciated about 22.25 cents since the war began. It is doubted if demoralization will cease until the British government arranges for a huge loan in this country at a high interest. One estimate is half a billion dollars. About $5,000,000 more has been shipped from Ottawa to New York on Bank of England account. This country has more surplus money than any in history.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE.

First hour transactions in New York totalled nearly 334,000 shares, and another million-share day was predicted. The total was nearly 550,000. War stocks opened higher. Rails were irregular, but had a better tone. Coppers were higher because of reports that foreigners had bought metal on a big scale. Among issues which sold at new high prices for this or previous years were U. S. Steel, Smelting, Beet Sugar, Car & Foundry, Republic Iron and Westinghouse. Among the second-line specialties, including Reading and Union Pacific made material gains. General Motors and Studebaker did not cause much reaction.

The market held strong on the whole from start until afternoon. Studebaker sold at yesterday's high-est, the record price, and then slumped on realization sales. Crucible, U. S. Rubber and Maxwell made big gains. Reports about the steel trade were very encouraging and the approach of the harvest season is having good effect upon the country's business in general. Trading sentiment was decidedly bullish.

MORE ACTIVITY HERE.

There was more activity in the Boston market, demand for copper shares increasing. Most of them were higher during the morning. The tone was firm at the opening. Zinc was unchanged in price, Spelter being quoted 12 10s. lower in London, where the market was 1s. 3d. higher, copper prices did not reflect foreign buying in New York. In London spot was off £3 10s. yesterday to £3 5s. and futures 10s. It is said big orders for electrolytic were placed in New York yesterday at 17¾ cents a pound, and that purchases from the same source took place here at 17½ cents. Inquiry for domestic demand was reported.

ANDREW MACK IN IRISH DRAMA AT MAJESTIC

Andrew Mack, his voice never in better, began a week at the Majestic Theatre, with the Majestic Players, in the Irish drama, "Asthore Rogue."

It was an expectant audience to which Mack recalls the Irish ballads. They fell like walking right up and shaking hands with Napper Tandy, and here and there was one who sang the chorus aloud when the Irish sonnets recalled the sweetheart—"The sunniest is forever the fairest," and "Mother Machree" and "A Little Piece of Heaven." If encores and few bouquets are rewards, Mack put in a pleasant evening.

In this human little drama, with its blarney and humor, its sorrows and oppression, Mack was well supported. Characters were shared with Mack by Sandy Chapman, as the sniffling "Mickey Feeny."

The other outstanding characters were William Mason as Colonel Bagenal Orlandy, whose English uniform could not conceal his Irish heart, and Miss Mildred Florence as Nora Costello, the courageous little sweetheart of Mack's boyhood.

Richard Tinder as "Hamish McCoul," the rebel leader; William Augustus Brady as Father Dan, the fighting English priest, and Maria DeWale, as Mrs. Costello, the mother, were also tought metal on a big scale. Among issues which sold at new high prices for this or previous years were U. S. Rubber common, 52¾; Crucible Steel, 75⅛; Baldwin Locomotive, 87; Beet Sugar, Car & Foundry, Republic Iron and Westinghouse. Among the second-line specialties, including Reading and Union Pacific made material gains. General Motors and Studebaker did not cause much reaction.

STELLA MAYHEW HEADLINER AT KEITH'S

Stella Mayhew, late star of the "High Jinks," assisted by Billie Taylor, head an exceptionally attractive bill at Keith's this week. Miss Mayhew, known all over the country as the "greatest laugh-getter" and who has headed a dozen or more of the Winter Garden's big musical hits, was given a most cordial reception last night.

Billie Taylor's songs, written by him especially for the part, were a decided hit. The act opens with Miss Mayhew making a song relative to her husband's whereabouts. After imitating the Italian organ grinder and a little girl, up pops Billie Taylor in the orchestra pit, where he had been directing the jazz.

Miss Mayhew's work with "George," the waiter, got a good laugh. Jazz for old times' sake Miss Mayhew gave the audience a touch of that famous "coon shouting" for which she has a big reputation.

Jean Hodgkins and Mlle. Destrees, late of Zegfeld's Follies and the Folies Bergere, presented a genuine novelty in the dancing line, showing a bit of "Dances—That's All," certainly proved that they could dance.

Heras and Preston, another pair new to Boston, presented their "Fast and Furious" acrobatic act. It was all of that.

The Kraytons offered "A Day in Hoopland." They showed some astonishing loop rolling in their unique specialty.

Fisher & Gilmore, in "Nothing But," latest events in motion pictures, pleased.

Howard Athenaeum.

The Howard Athenaeum opened the season yesterday with the American burlesque company, which will play in stock traction. The company was made up of genuinely pretty girls and funny wire comedians, who contributed to the entertainment in spirited fashion. Walter Fenner and Dainty Marie, in the role of "Pat Finnigan," and he created an audible chain of laughs and applause. Miss Marie, in the role of Dainty Rosa, a small package with a strong voice, and Winifred La France, a delightful singer and dancer.

Apart from the burlesque the management from right to the rear, put on a continuous vaudeville show that lived up to the slogan, "Always something doing, 1 till 11."

Scollay Square Olympia Theatre.

A very classy and pleasing variety of acts and photo-plays was shown yesterday at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre, including the following: Wayne and Warren girls, in a pretty novelty act entitled "Going to Reno"; Arco and Ann, "The Man with the Bottles," novelty balancing offering; Lee Ward, character comedian; Tuite's Collegians, in a snappy college skit; Browning and Lewis, in talk and song; Mons. Rossi and Company, in a spectacular illusion.

Tremont Theatre.

The last week of "The Birth of a Nation" is announced and there is a tremendous rush on the part of those who put off seeing it until the last minute. This picture has broken all records in Boston for number of performances.

Coming Events.

Monday evening, August 23, will be an event at the Wilbur Theatre when the popular playhouse will throw open its doors for the season in the musical farce success, "Nobody Home," which F. Ray Comstock and Elizabeth Marbury will present with the original New York cast.

Boston Theatre.

The first run of the motion picture world, Francis X. Bushman, and little Charlie Chaplin, in his brand new Essanay comedy, "His New Job," both shown for the first time in Boston, are the features of the bill which was offered at the Boston Theatre this week. Mr. Bushman is appearing in a picturization of Clyde Fitch's great romance of the Boer War, "The Second in Command," made famous by John Drew and played by him with tremendous success all over the United States. Mr. Bushman makes an ideal Lieutenant-Colonel Anstruther. Charlie Chaplin in his new two-part comedy "The Bank," is funnier than ever. Caroline R. Nichols and her company of women players, in the Padettes, offer "A Day at the Circus," an amusing and novel act, which proved popular with their daily concerts afternoon and evening. The final instalment of "The Goddess," that much-talked-about serial, is being shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The new vaudeville and moving picture policy at the Bowdoin Square Theatre jumped into instant favor yesterday and the management will change the bill Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday. This week Charlie Chaplin was seen in the clever comedy, "His New Job," which proved one of the laughing events of the season at that theatre. Francis X. Bushman, one of America's leading artists, was seen in the special feature film offering, "The Second Violin," which was one of those thrilling subjects that abound in romance and heart interest, including the famous battle with fists, the scene showing the Cossack cur mixing it with great ore crushers, the blowing up of the reservoir, and other scenes before the climax in the extreme. Barney Williams and his "Nine Summer Girls" offered a miniature musical comedy with special scenic effects, which was much enjoyed.

Loew's Globe Theatre.

Heading yesterday's bill at Loew's Globe Theatre was Sidney Payne and Allee Condon Company, in a new playlet entitled "Neutral," and entitled "Neutral." Among the other headliners were Demerest and Collette, in a novel and refined variety, also the famous whirlwind dancers, Joe Cole and Gertrude Donoly; Edmunds and Farrell appeared in an original offering. "The Hickville Minstrels," vaudeville funsters, including the famous battle with fists, the scene showing the Cossack cur mixing it with great ore crushers, the blowing up of the reservoir, and other scenes before the climax in the extreme. Barney Williams and his "Nine Summer Girls" offered a miniature musical comedy with special scenic effects, which was much enjoyed.

Loew's St. James Theatre.

Heading the all-star vaudeville show at Loew's St. James Theatre yesterday was Frank Bush, with a new story teller. The headline honors were also shared with the Roland Travers Company, in a comedy playlet, entitled "Dugan's Money." Von Hampton and Shriner and Mullen and Gerald delighted the large audiences. Landry Brothers and Annette also pleased. The Felix Bernard Company, their latest song hits. Among the feature photo plays were Charlie Chaplin in his new comedy, "The Bank." "The Romance of Elaine" was also shown.

WALDRON'S NOW OPEN FOR THE SEASON

Miss Billie Hill, who plays the fascinating widow, Mlle. Babbette, as leader of the revolutionists, Edwin Jerome, as Colonel Bluff, in command of the troops of the U. S. A.; Willie Newkirk, as Lieutenant Bob Manley. In love with Lillian, the colonel's daughter, played by Miss Alma Flemming, and Danny Murphy, Joe Barton and Ted Evans, three musicians known as "We, Us & Co.," all supported by about a dozen other chorus ladies and a dozen pretty girls, is giving the merriest sort of a show at Waldron's Casino, the opening week of which is on.

The company is known as "The Gay New Yorkers," and is by Joe Barton Roth, the music by Harry Van Tilzer, and the elaborate and spectacular dances by Ned Wayburn and Frank Wallace. The music is one great feature of the show.

In the first act the principal hits are "In Gay New York," "Under the American Flag," "The Shining Wedge," "Circus Day in Dixie" and "The Tango Girl." In the second act the chief hit is "We Have Got Another Washington," a patriotic number which is sung by Billie Hill and chorus, which was encored time and again.

FANNY WARD IN FILMS AT THE PARK

Fanny Ward in "The Marriage of Kitty," Elsie Janis in "Nearly a Lady," and a number of other exclusive high quality features constitute the big three-hour bill at the Park Theatre this week.

Fanny Ward is well known to Boston theatregoers as one of Broadway's most popular comediennes. She makes her bow as a photoplay star in the Lasky Paramount picture, "The Marriage of Kitty." It is very evident that Miss Ward is as clever as a comedienne in pantomime as she is in the legitimate spoken drama. The play is an especially delightful one, being a comedy of Bohemian and American society and manners.

Elsie Janis, another stage favorite and internationally celebrated as a vaudeville star, is equally as excellent a comedienne, as seen in exclusive Paramount photoplay "Nearly a Lady," her third Paramount photoplay vehicle. This is a romance of a Western girl, an English lord and a Montana sweetheart, and affords the charming Elsie many opportunities to display her cleverness and versatility as a comedy star and dancer.

An interesting and artistic prologue is given with the bill this week, an illustrative descriptive overture, "Panama Canal," composed by Charles Frank's Paramount Concert Orchestra.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Bissell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation." Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance . . . but if the salts are lost to organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of subsequent tea confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in combination as it is with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated. Try it and be convinced. Doubtless this also has much to do with the success of Eckman's Alterative in whooping cough, for it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. It is not a "cough syrup." Alterative Stores and leading druggists. Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

You Don't Need "Bunches of Muscle on Your Backs," Young Men

But Working on a Farm and Spreading Out Your Chest WOULD Do You Good

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

TWO young men want to be stronger and healthier, get away from the city and work on a farm. Read their letter. Usually such letters come from boys on a farm who want to get away to the city. This is a change.

The question: "How can we invest a year?" should be in the minds of all young men.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—How can we invest a year?

We are two young chaps, with good jobs and excellent prospects. But we have come to a sudden realization that we lack one of the most important elements of success—a robust physique.

Do not misunderstand. We are not sick. We are healthy, as health goes in the city. But no muscle bunches on our backs. Our chests could stand a few inches development before bulging our shirt fronts.

We want to get on a farm and work—work until our bodies are fit to harbor the ambitions that fire us.

How can we get in touch with a farmer who would take us in, and give us food, clothes and maybe a few dollars a month extra for our work?

I have spent my childhood on a farm. I know what torture the first few weeks would be. But after!—We would eat, drink and sleep well.

Is our scheme hare-brained? How can we get in touch with a farmer who could use us, or an agency that could place us? The Summer wanes. Every day lessens our chances. Please answer immediately. If you use this for publication, kindly omit names and addresses. We don't want to lose our jobs—yet.

Yours sincerely,
J. G. and J. S.

Your first question, young men, is your important question, "How can we invest a year?" All of us should invest our years. A few invest them, the majority squander them.

For yourselves you must decide the advisability of going into the country to lay a new foundation of health upon which to build.

You need not regret the absence of "bunches of muscle" on your back. Bunches of muscle on the back cease to be important with the application of steel and electricity to carrying of power.

In Constantinople you may see a Turk walking upstairs with one "innovation trunk" and other luggage on his back. Below the trunk are bunches of muscle that would amaze you.

Following behind the innovation trunk you would see some littlle commercial traveler weighing about one hundred and twenty pounds, and not a bunch of muscle anywhere. But he is a better man than the Turk who carries the trunk. For he has been developing differentiation of tissue in the brain underneath his skull.

Get your chest bigger by all means if you can—you can do that in the city. On the car on your way to work stand on the platform, take in deep breaths going and coming. Hold your chin up, stand straight. Read the advice on health given by your fellow-citizen, Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in the Boston AMERICAN.

But if you choose to settle on a farm, realizing that intelligent, intensive farming is profitable and pleasant, it may be a good thing for you.

In any case, life in the country would change the direction of your thought; you would get out of your mental rut. And nobody does much until he DOES get out of his mental rut.

Hard farm work—provided you have plenty of sleep and good food—would greatly improve your condition mentally and physically in six months.

It is not likely that any farmer would give you steady work for a year. Farmers usually hire men in the Summer and let them go in the Fall—that is one difficulty with the labor situation.

If you do get work on a farm, remember that violent, sudden work is bad. You might get a job picking apples, peaches or other fruit to start with.

You will find sufficient exercise in carrying a sixty-pound fruit basket through the orchard.

Later you could work up to the harder tasks.

Meanwhile, good luck to you and thanks for your interesting letter, which may make some other young men think.

Once-Overs

Are you a misfit?

Are you doing something which is distasteful to you except for the money there is in it?

If so, you will never get the full measure of success. There must be intensity of interest to make a marked advance. Discontent with the line of work you pursue brings failure.

It may be a little late, but you had better cast about for something more suited to your qualifications and tastes—some work you enjoy doing.

Within a short time, comparatively, you are likely to be earning as much as you receive now for the work which is distasteful, and your chances of progress will be much greater.

Perhaps the work in which you are engaged seems more "genteel" than that for which you are particularly well fitted, and for that reason you stick to it, but it is foolish to waste time and earning capacity solely to gratify a false pride.

You will need every cent you can earn during your years of activity to take care of your old age. Don't curtail success by being a misfit.

Frances Starr Tells How to Succeed as an Actress

By Frances Starr

Voice Cultivation

Miss Starr is one of the foremost actresses on the American stage today. She has attained her present enviable rank in her profession entirely through her own enterprise, work and study. In a comparatively short time she has risen from minor parts in a stock company to her position as David Belasco's most important woman star.

THE girl who hopes to become an actress must learn how to use her voice. I believe the American girl in general is in need of a word or two on this subject. Indeed, I think the average American voice is discordant. Sometimes I have gone to card parties or luncheons where there were only women guests, and have actually contracted a headache because of the tones of those in conversation about me.

The American girl who wishes to become an actress absolutely must learn to speak correctly, to speak pure English and to use her voice properly.

Never imagine for a moment that there is anything attractive either in a Western "burr" or a Southern "drawl." Pure English is pure English.

Tricks and mannerisms of speech may pass as "cuteness" in a very pretty girl in private life, but on the stage the tools with which an actress works are words—nothing but words. In so far as she uses them correctly and dextrously or awkwardly and without understanding is she an intelligent interpreter or a tiresome amateur.

Because of this matter of pure English, I believe the girl who hopes to become an actress should be able to appreciate beautiful language when she hears it or reads it. Also the girl who wishes to succeed should study pronunciation, breathing and singing. It does not matter whether or not she ever intends to sing publicly. The training which will be hers with a good singing instructor will "place" her speaking voice, teach her to enunciate, give her speaking tones a musical quality and make her capable of sustained and correct breathing.

A controlled speaking voice has become increasingly important upon the modern stage because of the structure of our theatres. All the new ones are built upon a steel frame. It is harder to make one's voice carry adequately in these new theatres than it was in the old frame buildings.

Again, the actors and actresses of today are not permitted to "declaim." They must speak to speak naturally, without effort. It is, therefore, all the harder for an actress to make herself "carry" across the footlights. Audiences have been trained to understand subtleties of tone and expression, to expect them. The lighter and quicker the effect the more must one be a true artist to convey it.

In trying to tell any girl how to obtain her first hearing it is impossible to offer set rules. Each case is really a separate case; no two experiences at this point in a theatrical career are the same. I will tell how I managed my own start.

I was but sixteen years old. I lived in Albany. I went, without introduction of any kind, to the offices of the management of a local stock company. I failed in my first effort or two to see anyone in authority. But I kept returning to the stage manager, and eventually he gave me a chance to show what I could do.

And right here I must say that one's personality cannot but have something to do with one's initial chance. If you have not backbone enough to persist until you see some stage manager and obtain a hearing you probably would not have will power enough to cling to your career through the many hardships to be endured before you attain success.

Or, again, if you wait for influence in the very beginning of your career as an actress you probably will place too much confidence in its puteney as your work develops.

I believe that stock companies offer an ideal training to the girl who regards her chosen profession seriously, although each passing year sees fewer of these companies in existence. Like many other institutions they have to give way before the encroaching appeal of the moving picture.

However, if the young girl who seeks to adopt the stage as her career does find that she has an opportunity for an engagement in a stock company for twelve months or more she should accept it at once with the grateful realization that the experience thus offered her will prove invaluable in after years. Personally I played over two hundred roles during the few stock engagements I fulfilled previous to my first New York engagement.

The pay is unimportant. The experience is invaluable.

And one more word of advice to the girl who hopes to become an actress: Never refuse an engagement. Always take what is offered rather than remain idle. Never haggle over a salary.

If you follow these rules you may not have found the line of least resistance, but you are bound to attain a measure of success.

In her next article this famous young actress will tell what pay actors earn at first.

Go Plant a Tree

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

GOD, what a joy it is to plant a tree,
And from the sallow earth to watch it rise,
Lifting its emerald branches to the skies
In silent adoration; and to see
Its strength and glory waxing with each Spring
Yes, 'tis a goodly and a gladsome thing
To plant a tree.

Nature has many marvels; but a tree
Seems more than marvellous. It is divine.
So generous, so tender, so benign,
Not garrulous, like the rivers; and yet free
In pleasant converse with the winds and birds;
Oh! privilege beyond explaining words,
To plant a tree.

Rocks are majestic; but, unlike a tree,
They stand aloof and silent. In the roar
Of ocean billows breaking on the shore
There sounds the voice of turmoil. But a tree
Speaks ever of companionship and rest.
Yes, of all righteous acts, this, this is best,
To plant a tree.

There is an oak (oh, how I love that tree!)
Which has been thriving for a hundred years;
Each day I send my blessings through the spheres
To one who gave this triple boon to me,
Of growing beauty, singing birds, and shade.
Wouldst thou win laurels that shall never fade?
Go plant a tree.

IT is doubtful if there is an intelligent human being in the world of any age who does not love the green verdure of the earth. Grass, flowers, plants, bushes, vines, trees, all speak a language of their own; and that language talks of God. The most irreverent and materialistic nature is yet stirred with an indefinable sensation and a consciousness of a power, felt while unperceived, when gazing upon a forest of splendid trees.

The dignity, the majesty and the beauty of a tree surpasses that of almost any other object in nature. The length of time which it requires an oak tree to attain colossal proportions surrounds that tree with something like a halo in the eyes of those who are gifted with the power of appreciation and an understanding of the sublimity of nature.

The imaginative mind cannot help feeling the trees have souls and memories and that they store up within themselves histories of past generations and even past centuries. The man who wantonly destroys a tree without reason or cause is guilty of a crime against nature.

The man who plants a tree and looks to see that it is cared for and nurtured during its infancy until it gains strength and vigor is a public benefactor. He may never live to see the tree reach its maturity, but he has done a deed which will benefit people unborn and give comfort, beauty and pleasure to myriads.

Unfortunately for the world and for human kind, much of the earth has been grasped by monopolies, and but a small percentage of people own a space sufficiently large to admit the planting of a tree. The dead pauper is given six feet of ground free in potter's field, but the live toiler is not allowed even that space without paying a high price for it. This will all be changed in time.

Meantime, let each individual who owns or rents for any period of time a little plot of land do something at this time of year to beautify it for those who will follow after him. Go plant a tree, if possible.

If that is impossible, plant a hardy shrub, something that will withstand the rigor of Winter and will make the world more beautiful in the Spring and Summer. If each one who can do this does it, in a few years the world will receive inestimable benefit in its development of beauty. The search for beauty is the search for God.

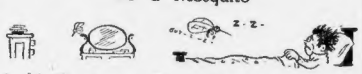
"When old Egypt died, four per cent. of the people owned all the wealth. When Babylon died three per cent of the people owned all the wealth. When old Persia died two per cent. owned all the wealth. When Greece died one-half of one per cent. owned all of the wealth. And when Rome died 2,000 people owned the civilized world, and then followed the Dark Ages, from which we did not recover until wealth was scattered or destroyed by continual wars."

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay." —Goldsmith

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

To a Mosquito



As Wordsworth Would Have Worded It

DELIRIOUS minstrel; pilgrim of the gloom,
Is it thy aim to sing me to my rest
Or dost thou soar in spirals 'round my room
Intent to settle softly on my chest?
My chest, in which thou soon wilt sink thy bill,
Those quivering wings composed, that music still.

TO the last point of patience I endure
Thy tantalizing threat to do me wrong,
And when I fancy I have got thee sure,
My ears misguided by thy grating song,
Just where I land my fierce, vindictive swat
Is always on a place where thou art not.

FOR hours, though I try to go to sleep,
I cannot do it, for thy rasping strain
Exasperates me and I wildly keep
Attempting thy destruction—all in vain.
Still thou dost jab, and still I fume and fret—
But never mind, base bug, I'll get you yet!

It May Be for Years, and It May Be Forever

People are slow to learn. For example: How long do you suppose it will be before the coal dealers discover that now that the coal rates have been reduced they can sell cheaper to the ultimate consumer?
